

JCSO Columbine Documents Organized by Theme

Compiled by Peter Langman, Ph.D.

My goal with this document is to provide guidance for anyone who is interested in researching Eric Harris, Dylan Klebold, and their attack on Columbine High School. During the course of research for my book Why Kids Kill: Inside the Minds of School Shooters, I accumulated a massive number of notes on Eric, Dylan, and Columbine. Once the book was written, it seemed like a good idea to polish my notes and make them available to other researchers.

There are several bodies of documents available from the Jefferson County Sheriff's Office (JCSO). Five groups of documents were the source materials that I used to build this compilation. The earliest are JCSO documents from 1997 and 1998. These are a result of complaints by Randy and Judy Brown that Eric Harris was involved in making and detonating bombs and was threatening to kill their son Brooks. The police documents include copies of Eric's webpages that the Browns provided. These documents are cited as JCSO 1997 and JCSO 1998. The documents themselves do not have page numbers; the pages cited are the pages in the pdf files.

The next two sets of documents are the Diversion records for Eric and Dylan. On January 30, 1998, the two boys were arrested for breaking into a van and stealing electronics equipment. They were referred to a diversion program that was designed to keep young offenders out of the legal system. These documents are cited as EH Diversion and DK Diversion. These and the above documents are available at www.schoolshooters.info.

The vast majority of the references, however, are from a massive collection of nearly 27,000 pages of JCSO documents related to the attack on Columbine High School on April 20, 1999. Most of these documents are available through JCSO. These documents have been assigned page numbers in the format of (for example) JC-001-010011. For the sake of simplicity, this page would be listed in this document as 10,011. Many witnesses were interviewed more than once, and these instances allow us to see if their reports are consistent. Therefore, in some cases, more than one page is listed thus: 5,282/23,546. This means that the same (or similar) information from the same person can be found on both pages.

Occasional citations are followed by QS, indicating that it is a questionable source. This may be because the person has provided questionable testimony in other areas (see my article "The Search for Truth at Columbine" for examples), or the information provided is at odds with what is known from more reliable sources. A few citations are followed by (?), meaning I have doubts about the information provided. It is important to remember that just because something was reported does not mean it is true, especially when witnesses passed on information they heard from their friends and did not know first-hand. The attack at Columbine generated many rumors, some outright lies, and much inaccurate or biased information.

Within each section of the document, the citations are listed in order by page numbers, with the documents from the 27,000 compilation coming first, and references from JCSO 1997, JCSO 1998, and the Diversion documents coming afterward.

A guide to the abbreviations used in this document is provided to the left. Rebel News Network was Columbine High School's communication network that broadcast to television sets in each class room.

This document is the result of uncounted hours of painstaking work over the last two years. I make no claim to having included every relevant reference from the source documents, but I do consider this to be a valiant effort and a significant step in making the staggering amount of information on Columbine accessible to those who are interested.

Eric Harris [26,015] journal entry where he complained he was made fun of<sup>2</sup>

1 Cory graduated in 1997. Thus, he was not in school for EH and DK's last two years and did not witness any harassment during that time.

2 Both of Eric's journal entries where he complained of being teased occurred in November, 1998, just five days apart. It is perhaps relevant that the one episode of physical harassment that has been documented occurred in the fall of 1998. It is also noteworthy that in each entry where he complained about being made fun of, Eric went on to almost justify or exonerate his peers. In the first passage, Eric made his complaint and then wrote, "Then again, I have always hated how I looked, I make fun of people who look like me, sometimes without even thinking sometimes just because I want to rip on myself." He seemed to feel he deserved to be picked on. In the next entry, Eric complained of being mistreated and then wrote, "Then again its human nature to do what you did . . . so I guess I am also attacking the human race." Again, after his complaint he acknowledged that people are simply being human by acting as they do. It is an interesting personality dynamic.

5 JOCKS AND THE TRENCH COAT MAFIA

In the aftermath of the attack at Columbine, there was a significant focus on the behavior of both athletes and members of the Trench Coat Mafia. The following sections present references regarding mistreatment and/or misbehavior of both groups. Though the popular perception seems to be that jocks mistreated other students, including the Trench Coat Mafia, it appears that this was not as pervasive as initially reported. In addition, there is testimony that the Trench Coat Mafia also engaged in harassment, intimidation, and provocative behavior.

<sup>5</sup> This girl appears to have been Jenni Laufenberg. The conversation refers to their workplace and Eric addresses her as "Jen" on p. 26,631. We know from Jenni's testimony on p. 20,207 that she worked with him at Tortilla Wraps and that they had online chats. Furthermore, from the internal evidence of their chat, it can be deduced that it occurred on 9 July 1998. Jenni said that she was leaving in three weeks to be away for most of August, and Eric said that he had a Diversion (probation) appointment the next day. We know from his Diversion records that he had a meeting on 10 July 1998, which means that this conversation with Jenni was on the 9th.
