
Elliot Rodger's Journal

Transcribed by
SOFIA MONASTERIO

Elliot Rodger's journal, written by hand in two volumes, is clean and legible throughout, with minor mechanical errors. The spelling, capitalization, and punctuation of the original have been retained. Some but not all errors have been marked with "sic" to avoid confusion. Italics for titles have been added by the editors. Rodger frequently deleted text by heavily crossing out individual words to the point of indecipherability; such words are noted as "canceled" in the transcript. Crossed-out pieces of text apparently shorter than a full word in length (as in aborted attempts to spell a word) have not been noted. Canceled words that remain legible have been included in the transcript and stricken through with diagonal lines. Some leaves were torn out of the journal, and others cut out with scissors. We have attempted in each case to indicate the number of missing leaves based on the visual evidence. The page numbers in the lefthand margin correspond to the pages of the scan of the journal available at School Shooters .info and do not account for missing leaves in the physical books. Some names have been redacted to protect the innocent.

I would rather be oppressed by a powerful but fair government than be oppressed by an unfair society protected by a weak, democratic government.

What awkward, perplexing times these are. My 19th birthday approaches and I am still stuck and confused. My 19th birthday! I can hardly believe it. Just 14 years ago I arrived in the United States as a carefree child of life and happiness. Just 9 years ago I graduated from 5th grade with smiles and laughter. What went wrong? What went wrong?

Page 4 I slipped and fell off the right path of life onto one of agonizing darkness. Or maybe I was shoved.

I never imagined my life would turn into one of such hopelessness. When I was a little child I was at peace, ignorant of what would befall me. I often look back on those times with longing these days. Sometimes I wish I could start over. But even so, could I really right my wrongs and avoid the cruelty of society? Or would the same things happen, and I would face the same bleak alienation and loneliness?

Page 5 I can remember the days of my early childhood better than most others, especially the day I arrived in the United States of America. I remember the big plane we rode in, the Virgin Atlantic I believe, though I didn't really care at that age. I would go to the window at the back and look down upon the beautiful white clouds covering the world with wonder. I imagined myself running across them as if they were a landscape. At certain points I could faintly see the landscape beneath, hundreds of squares of farms and fields.

The plane ride was very long, but I was too excited to fall

Page 6 asleep. When we landed I could see all the lights of LA out the window, which amazed me.

I got to catch up on my sleep on the ride home. As we got into the blue jeep my father rented, I was very tired and groggy from the journey, but I can remember that precise moment so vividly to this day. The image I envisioned from the back seat of the jeep as it pulled out of the airport parking lot is still fresh in my mind; the first step of my life in the US.

Page 7 [Nineteen canceled words] All is quiet, but the horrible emotions roiling inside me clash and erupt like a giant storm.

Like a storm damages land and forest, the storm of fury racks me with pain. And yet, and yet ... with the power of my superior mind I quell the storm with dexterous focus. The storm of fury erases and is banished back down to the core of my heart. [Three canceled words] The storm is gone, but the scar remains, as they always do.

The reality of human barbarism has been haunting me for several years now. The process of discovering these terrible truths has been slow and grueling; but now, as I've gathered much insight and knowledge through study and observation, I have come to understand humanity's current state, and my place in the world.

Now is the time to find a way to mend these problems with human nature.

Yesterday I drove to Metro Hair Salon to get my hair cut. I had an appointment with Summer is here and the temperature is scaldingly hot today. I cannot even open my window because the heat would permeat[e] into my room. I must be wary every time I go outdoors, for the hot sun would surely affect my skin in an unpleasant way.

Summer. My 19th summer. My birthday is approximately one month away, [two canceled words]; this year has gone by too fast, and each year seems to be passing

Page 10 faster and faster, I fear.

Out of the 19 years that I've lived on this world, 5 have been a torment full of unfulfilled desires. I remember the start of this dreadful period of my life all too well. I never used to get along with girls very well, even as a child. They were always cold and bitchy towards me, and not one ever befriended me. Before I hit puberty though, that wasn't much of a problem; but then the day came, the day my manhood would stir at the sight of a hot girl, the day I first started [two canceled words] touching myself late at night while fantasizing about making love. When all these

Page 11 changes started occurring, I was completely at a loss.

I started to want girls. I started to yearn for companionship. I knew that couldn't be, though. I realized I could never be good enough for them, how heartbreaking that was. I would see young couples my age kissing and fondling each other in public, such a lovely display of affection! and I would feel confused, then [one canceled word] sad and angry at the fact that I could never have such pleasure.

I could never have such beautiful, heavenly pleasure; [three canceled words] because I ~~was~~ just didn't measure up to other boys my age. I was the weakling, Page 12 the little runt, the weird kid. Boys always made fun of me and girls would tease me. That hurt the most. I felt so out of place, so lost, separate from the rest of humanity. I hid in a virtual world and tried hard to forget about it, but the pain was always there. And that was only the beginning.

Such a lonely five years it has been, and I've grown ever more bitter and resentful.

I've started attending this summer history course at Moorpark College. Today is my third day, in fact. So far I am not liking

Page 13 it one bit; it's been the cause of my increasing emotional distress for the last three days, not like that's anything new.

Pain has been my life for the past few years, but what I've seen at this college has only fanned the flames. Couples, or lovers, have always angered me when I spot them in public, [two canceled words] college but that is only once in a while, like when I got to the mall occasionally. At this college though, I see them [one canceled word] everywhere! And when I walk past them and look at them, they seem to [one canceled word] notice my envy and smile at me. It probably gives them pleasure, the foul beasts. It is so hurtful.

Page 14 There is this one couple in particular that sits a few desks away from me in my history class. The girl is the hottest girl in the class, with [one canceled word] brown hair and a perfect body. The boy, of course, is a tall, muscular Jock with a buzz cut. They sit together every time, always talking and smiling at each other. I frequently glare at them with raw envy, and I think they take note of it too. They fill me with such rage, it even distracts me from the lecture at times.

Why can't I be that man? Why does he deserve it more than me? Why do I always have to stand at the side, lonely, watching

Page 15 other humans enjoy each other's love and affection? I don't even feel like a man because of my lowly position. I don't even feel human. Well, I've had enough of writing about this topic for today, I feel I'll be writing much more about this in the future, the more I attend this damnable class.

[thirteen canceled words] I heard the sounds of voices and shouts of revelry coming from the pool outside. I walked to the window and looked down. There I saw about twenty college-aged men and women having a pool party. There were about

Page 16 fifteen males and five females. Quite an unbalanced ratio in my opinion. There should be more females than males. Of course, all the males were the frisky, wild, confident type. I saw a few black men among them. I thought one of the girls was quite pretty. She had blonde hair and lovely tanned [one canceled word] legs.

Only a few times have I seen groups of young people partying at my apartment pool, and in all those times I became very enraged and jealous. [eleven canceled words] [twenty-two canceled words]

I just checked the winning numbers for the Megamillions lottery and ... no luck, not even one number matched. Well, I have my Superlotto ticket for tomorrow. I'll keep my fingers crossed for that.

I feel so terribly depressed right now. By my eminence!, it's so painful, [one canceled word] too painful. I can barely write properly. I've just been reading articles on the internet about becoming a writer. All these articles just put me down. They are full of negative defeatists talking about how hard it is to even make

Page 18 a living as a writer! And everyone says that thousands of writers struggle to even get their books published. Only one in a million would get rich from writing a story! No, no, no! This is making me feel so hopeless. I have a brilliant story to write, but what if so many others have also tried to sell their brilliant stories and failed? How can I get rich from writing my story over so many unsuccessful authors who have so much more writing experience than me? This is a fucking nightmare! This is hell.

This past week has been a very tough week emotionally.

Page 19 A few days ago I went to visit my mother and sister, who were staying at my mother's friend's house for a night. I went there for a change of scenery, to try and ease the depression [sic] and anguish I was feeling beforehand over certain things I read about people on facebook. The house is right on the beach in Malibu, and it's very beautiful, but it gives me an ominous feeling as well.

I do like it there very much. The area is very calm, and the view of the ocean is spectacular. The thing is though, is that it reminds me of a bitter experience I had back in November 2009, more than half a year ago.

Page 20 I can remember it vividly. I was at that house and an old friend (who is no longer my friend) named Philip picked me up from there to hang out. He had that wretched scoundrel Addison with him. Philip was driving Addison around all the time, being his little pony. That's what Philip is, a little pony; a sad, pathetic person without any pride or ego who just lets others step all over him and he doesn't care. So that day Addison was going to a party with Malibu high school kids, horrible people, and Philip was to drop him off. I was in the car with that foul prick as Philip drove him to the store to buy alcohol for his precious party and then to the Page 21 party itself. Addison A [REDACTED] truly is a depraved, nasty creature. As he got out of the car to go [two canceled words] he [one canceled word] gloats at me and calls me a loser. He didn't even have the decency to invite me and Philip to go with him. Philip, of course, didn't give a shit, but I will never forget what happened that day. How dare Addison slight me so!

I was enraged for the rest of that night, I recall. I realized that there was very little hope for me to be able to fit in with all the "hot" people who live such happy lives. They would all think of me as a loser, such foul, horrible people they are. How can people who live in such heaven be so cruel? That

Page 22 night I was so distraught that I had my first cigarette, and it wouldn't be my last. I didn't care what happened to my lungs; I felt so worthless and unwanted. When Philip dropped me back at that house, I walked down to the beach, looked out to the dark waves and starry sky, and contemplated my place in the world. When I was there a few days ago, I also looked out to the horizon in ominous brooding.

The rest of this week I've just been driving to this college class and back. I would just go into the class, sit in an uncomfortable chair for two hours, and listen to this lecture. Then I would [one canceled word] leave and go home. While in the class I would

Page 23 try not to pay attention to this couple that sits a few desks away from me. Dismal days indeed.

I've really been trying to push myself to work on my epic story, but it's damn hard to find the incentive, especially after reading all those dreadful articles on the internet.

I hate it when I think about embarrassing moments in my past. Because of my weird personality and

[Bottom of leaf removed]

Page 24 And whenever I do or say something embarrassing, it bothers me forever after. A lot of them involve how I act around girls, in the rare moment[s] when I'm actually in their vicinity. When I think about such moments I always tense up and it feels like it's poking at my mind. The only way to stop it is to forget about it, but it always comes back. I just thought of an embarrassing moment a few minutes ago, and it was very irritating.

Page 25 whole year of dedication to [one canceled word] learn the skills to write even the first draft of a novel. So for now I'll just write the synopsis, edit it till it's perfect, and then I'll see where that goes.

Earlier this year I was seriously considering hiring an escort or a prostitute to help me with my sexual desires. I do have very strong sexual desires, which put me in agony instead of harmony because I can never satisfy such desires. Philip was the one who suggested I hire a prostitute. That insolent little lout. I hate it when people view me as such a loser and suggest that I hire a whore, Page 26 I hate it! They pity me, that's why; they fucking pity me. That is the sickening truth.

After months of consideration I came to realize that if I do hire a prostitute to take my virginity, I will be hurt forever, because I will know that she will only be pleasuring me because I'm paying her for the service. It is a prostitute[']s job, and she will pleasure any client. A prostitute wouldn't want to fuck me, she will just see me as one of her many [one canceled word] duties of her job. But that is the only way I will ever be able to have sex, isn't it? because no real girl will ever want to have sex with me and my small dick. The whole pleasure of sex would be a girl's desire for

Page 27 me, it would make me feel so special, but that is something I cannot buy from a whore and can never have.

I want a beautiful girl to love me, to hold me close, to want me in her. I want her to want me more than any other person in the world. I would feel so special; it would be heavenly. Oh, how I wish for that, for love, for bliss. Other men out there have that and I don't. It's true, I've seen it. The world is not fair.

Today was a weird day. I went to visit Planet Cyber for the first time in a long while. I checked up on my membership account and looked around the Page 28 place. It's been changed around a bit, but it still feels the same. It has been such a long time since I used to go there every day to play video games, back when I was 12 years old. That period was the last time I felt happiness in my life. I can remember the friends I used to hang out with there; Charlie, Johnjo, Elijah; and the games I played; such as Battlefield, Diablo II, and Warcraft III. Those games are what led me to start playing World of Warcraft, which became my life for much of my teenage years, sadly. When I went to Planet Cyber today I felt very nostalgic.

My last day as an 18 year old is today. I should do something to make this day memorable. Perhaps I'll go for a walk at Serrania Park or at the hill near my home. I'll be doing a lot of hard thinking today about the tough year that's just gone by.

It's been a very emotional year, just like the one before it. These were years of brooding over my place in the world, great turning points in my life; years of sadness and pain and isolation. Yet here I am. I have endured all that hell while others are in heaven. No matter what my place in the Page 30 world is, no matter what I am, I am a strong creature now.

About to go to bed now. When I wake up tomorrow morning, I will officially be 19 years old. A sad thought. Hopefully my sleep won't be troubled by my upset mood.

8/1/2010

A week has passed since my 19th birthday. My first week as a 19 year old has been a horrible, sad week. Oh, a sad, sad week. All my horrible insecurities, my dismal circumstances, my lowly position in my life, my envy; all that and more I've had to face this past

[Two leaves removed]

Page 31 I ask myself every day. An even more meaningful question: Will I ever find love? a soulmate? the beautiful girl of my dreams who I can make sweet, sweet love to and share my life with?

My heart and soul, my entire being cries out for such desires every day; every second of every day! I think about those who do have it ... oh, I can only imagine the heaven they must be in, pleasure beyond comprehension! It seems impossible for me to fulfill my dreams. Is there a possible future of happiness for me? in which I will find a lover? Do I dare hope?

Over the last several months I've been playing a lot of the dreaded game World of Warcraft. I went back to playing it over the summer, at the the same time that I quit that job. Back to playing a game that took up so much time during my early and middle teenage years. Back to hiding in a virtual world because I was too frustrated with reality.

Before I started playing it again in the summer, I had spent more than a year without it. In that year though, nothing had changed; I had remained a loner after I quit the first time. Because of this, I figured I had nothing

Page 33 to lose if I started playing again. I've been playing it ever since, up till now. I am glad that I've just recently quit, a second time.

I was wrong to think that I had nothing to lose in playing it. It takes up so much time — valuable time, and commitment; and for what? a false sense of empowerment, a fake reality that drew me even further from the real world. Now that I have quit — again, I can use all the time and energy I spend on my fictional World of Warcraft character to improve my real life character, me. This game will weaken me no longer! Whatever may become of me in this cruel world, whether I find my heart's

Page 34 desire or not, whether I lead a happy life of love or a dreadful life of hate, I will be worth something in this world.

1/15/2011

In the past few months I've wasted a lot of time, mainly by playing video games to try and make myself forget about my troubles. I'm going to apply that time to improve myself as much as possible. I'm going to do something productive each day from now on. I don't turn twenty for another six and a half months. There is still hope for me. I must believe it.

[Four canceled words] I am extremely envious of teenagers who have sex lives. Not only that, but I am utterly bewildered by the unfairness of it all. It is very shocking, and it is very fucked up. Here I am, almost twenty years old, and still a virgin. Sex is on my mind every day, and yet I've never even kissed a girl. Other teenage males who are younger than me already have sex lives; I know, I've read about it online. They talk about sex as if it's part of everyday life. It is for them. For me it's a [one canceled word] step into heaven! I crave for it with all my being, and I've never had it.

Page 36 I've never even had a taste of it. Why do other males get to experience this ultimate pleasure of life and I don't? Why can't I be them?

I've just started my spring semester at Moorpark College. The previous Fall semester was uneventful, just like the summer; nothing happened, nothing changed in my life, and I didn't learn all that much. My mother and my grandmother have agreed to pay me some money to support myself so long as I attend this community college. Therefore I don't need to get a job as of right now. So far that

This is the second week of my new semester. Right now I'm sitting alone at a quiet table near the outskirts of the college. The view, I must say, is very beautiful; looking out over the holy region of Thousand Oaks. That's the only good thing I can say about this place. Coming here has, in a way, added to my feelings of worthlessness that affect me every day. I'm nobody here: nothing, invisible. Everyone else here, from what I've observed, at least has some friends. I've seen many couples that always make me quiver with envy. I am always all alone. No one here has ever spoken a word to Page 38 me; oh, with the exception of one person asking to borrow a pencil last semester. That's all people see me as, an object they can use, not a human being. Nevertheless, I let him borrow that pencil, because I was trying to be nice. I always try to be nice, despite the way society treats me. I'm a nice and generous person, and I never get any reward for it.

My break is almost over. My next class is starting soon, which is psychology. I'm going to sit in that class, listen to the lecture, and then drive home. An exact replica of every day I've spent at this college.

Just got back home from class. Today was a horrible day. In my Page 39 History class I couldn't help admiring this attractive girl sitting in front of me. She was very hot. Then, at one moment, she looked over her shoulder and caught me checking her out. She then looked at me with utter indignation. She was indignant at the prospect of me finding her attractive! As if I'm some kind of lesser creature who isn't worthy of even looking at her! It seems this is how all females view me. I don't deserve this hostility and rejection from humanity. Why can't I fit in with humanity? Am I not human? My whole existence seems like a joke, a mockery of life.

There are so many attractive

Page 40 girls at my school. It's unbelievable. I wish I could [one canceled word] have a chance with one of them, but no girl has ever noticed me. I don't want to think about the dreaded fact that other men have possibly made love to those girls. How much I envy the men who had that opportunity!

OK, I'm getting too upset right now. I really shouldn't be focusing on this problem! It's only day 19 of the new year. I am counting down the days until my 20th birthday. I still have around 200 days left as a teenager! I should focus on improving myself and try to find a way to success, quickly.

Page 41 I'm panicking right now. I'm scared that I'm doomed to forever be a virgin with no love in my life. I am so scared. If I can't lose my virginity in the next 200 days then it's hopeless. I just need to try! I must exert myself as much as I can, yes yes. If I go out of my mother's apartment every single day, for hours, whether it's the bookstore, or college, or the mall; maybe, just maybe, I'll find a girlfriend who will love me for who I am? I really don't know. I'm on the verge of a breakdown right now. I must do something though! How the hell do all those high schoolers manage

Page 42 to do it? I don't understand. I still have a bit of time. It's not to[o] late, is it? There is still hope for me, isn't there? Alright, I'm going to start pushing myself from tomorrow onwards. Tomorrow I'm going to leave the house and not come back until nighttime. I'm also going to think hard every day about ways to become successful. What about that story I was planning to write? Perhaps that is my way to success. I stopped working on that last summer. I think it's time to resume it. [eight canceled words] I know I can do this! I must believe I can. Positive thinking, positive thinking!

My relationship with my father has greatly improved lately. Over the past year we've had many arguments and disagreements, mostly having to do with my step-mother, Soumaya. When grandma Jinx came from England to visit in October, we all sat down and talked things through. I'm glad that happened, for we resolved many issues and agreed to start again. I am still very disappointed with him though; I think he is a despicable father who doesn't care at all about the problems I'm facing in life. I'm going to overlook this though, because nothing I do or say will change him. He is who he is.

I enjoy being on speaking terms with him again, and being part of his family again.

I've been going to my father's house for dinner often in the past couple months. I especially like seeing my five year old little half-brother, Jazz. He makes me feel good about myself. The boy really looks up to me.

This is the most important period of my life. I have the power to change my life for the better. I must believe that my desires will come true. I will believe it!

I have just started reading this shockingly magnificent book called The Secret. I am so emotionally touched by this book. I almost cried with joy and renewed hope. The book teaches me that I can have all the things I want from life by thinking positively and [one canceled word] applying the Law of Attraction. I'm a skeptic person, but I am so desperate for love and joy and happiness and sex that I am going to believe EVERYTHING this book has to teach, and I'm going to apply it to the fullest! I'm only a couple chapters into this life-changing book and I'm already feeling so hopeful. I can't wait to read more of it.

I'm starting to work on thinking and feeling positive about myself. If I stop feeling worthless, then the Law of Attraction will take away all the bad things in my life that make me feel worthless. If I feel worthy of sex and love, then the Law of Attraction will provide me with sex and love.

Today I went on a long walk to my father's house. As I walked [I] tried to love and appreciate everything around me. I reflected back on all the things that have happened to me in the past and realized that perhaps they were all the product of negative thinking. I must start thinking positively! I must love myself instead of hate myself. I did all the mental exercises that this great book, The Secret, has taught me and I'm already feeling better about myself. I haven't finished the book yet, but I'm reading it aloud and taking in every word.

When I got to my father's house I took the dog, Lucky, with me as I walked up the hill in our neighborhood. I've walked this route many times in my past, and in all those times I was feeling downtrodden, rejected, and sad. This was the first time I've walked up this hill while feeling positive and hopeful.

My Karate class yesterday was productive. I'm still a beginner, but yesterday I noticed that I'm starting to really get the hang of it. It's an interesting fighting style to learn. A few weeks ago, when I went to my first Karate class, I figured I would just try it out to see what it's like and then stop. Now I think I'm going to keep learning it. The ability to fight better is power, and a major confidence boost. I've observed the sheer amount of confidence and courage that my friend James has developed after taking this same class for a year. It is incredible. When we were sitting in a fast food restaurant in the Palisades the other day, I asked him if he believed he could single-handedly take on these three high school jocks sitting at another table. He actually believed, without a doubt, that he could beat all three at the same time! Now that is the kind of confidence I hope to attain from taking Karate.

The book, The Secret, has truly enlightened me. It has taught me to believe that I can have all that I want, and by doing so I will receive everything I want ... fulfill all my desires. This is it! The great turning point. This is the time to change my life for the better. I deserve to have all my desires fulfilled. I will have all my desires fulfilled. I will have everything I want: .. sex, love, wealth, worth ... everything I've ever dreamed of having will now be my life, because I believe I can have it! The universe will deliver it to me. I KNOW it, and that's what will make me GET it.

I'm at my college right now, in between classes. I'm noticing improvement in myself in regards to how I mentally deal with situations at my college. After reading The Secret, I now know that I will receive everything I desire by focusing all my thoughts on it. I'm no longer going to bother myself by envying other people around me. I'm soon going to have a better life than any of those fools. I'll attract more to me by using the Law of Attraction, more than any of them have ever had. One hundred million times more. I will have more wealth than them. I will have a more pleasurable sex life than them. I will have everything I desire and more by using the Law of Attraction. I know about the Law of Attraction, and other people my age don't.

I have utter faith in the Law of Attraction now. I believe in it with all my heart. I know it is true. It explains everything. Why there [are] rich people and poor people; why the rich get richer and the poor get poorer. It's all from the power of thought. Rich people think and know they are rich, therefore they attract being rich and can only get richer. The poor people who think of themselves as poor and believe that they are doomed to be miserable for the rest of their lives will only attract that miserable life.

It could be the explanation for why my life has been horrible and why so many people have had better lives than me. It's because I've always thought negatively. I've always thought of myself as miserable and doomed to misery. I've always thought of myself as a loser and of others as winners. My thoughts have manifested into reality, haven't

Page 53 they? That has to be the explanation! That has to be the reason why I have suffered in bitter loneliness while other teenagers have had a good time. I have unwittingly been using the Law of Attraction in a negative way while other teenagers have been unwittingly been [sic] using the Law of Attraction in a positive way. Oh, what a fool I have been. Now is the time to change.

It's been five days since I started reading The Secret. I've read through the whole thing aloud and now I'm in the process of reading it again. Every day I am absorbing it into my mind, totally changing the way I think. I am

Page 54 training my mind to use all of the book's teachings. I do this intensely, especially when I go on long walks by myself which I call "therapy walks". I used to go on such walks many times in the past, in an attempt to calm myself from my anger at being an outcast. Now I walk with a much more hopeful air. I now know that a happy future is possible for me.

I faced an obstacle today. In my last class I got extremely envious of a couple sitting in front of me. Well, I only feel envious towards the male of course, and hatred towards the girl for being with him. This is a Page 55 horrifying obstacle. It can and will lead to very negative [one canceled word] thoughts. I cannot let myself be afflicted by negative thoughts. That will ruin the Law of Attraction plan! If I stop the negative thinking, then perhaps all the situations and circumstances that lead to negative thinking will go away, vanish forever. I need to think and feel positive about myself. I need to believe that one day, and that day soon, I will [one canceled word] have a much more attractive girlfriend than that guy in my [one canceled word] class has. I will! I know it! I have to believe it! As The Secret states: my thoughts will manifest into reality.

I'm going to do something

Page 56 out of the ordinary today. After my next class I'm going to drive all the way to Malibu and sit on the beach. There I will read the entire book of The Secret again. Once my mind is further infused with its wonderful teachings of the Law of Attraction, I will watch the sun set on the beach, and focus with all my thought and feeling on the life I want. The life I will have.

It's already February. Time has gone by pretty fast in the last several days. Last week I got depressed due to my intense skepticism of the Law of Attraction and a feeling

Page 57 of sudden helplessness, of not knowing which path to take or where to go. I can barely sleep at night, and sometimes I cry with emotion and longing, soaking my pillow with tears. This is the most important period of my life, the great turning point. My decisions now will deeply affect my future. I need to act fast. I need to find a plan that will bring me great wealth, which will in turn bring me happiness, love, and sex. I need to become a winner and make up for the [one canceled word] loneliness and isolation I've suffered from all throughout my teen years. The problem is: what am I to Page 58 do? what can I do? and how am I going to do it?

2/9/2011

It is the 40th day of the New Year. What have I accomplished so far? I've read a few insightful books, I've learned about the Law of Attraction, I've started applying positive thinking to my daily life, I've done a lot of introspective thinking ... but I'm still the same person; I'm still a lonely virgin. I certainly don't feel like I've gotten anywhere close to attaining the life I want, the life I see so many other teenagers living. Perhaps I need to work harder. Perhaps I need to stop wasting Page 59 time and use every second of each day towards the goal of fulfilling my desires.

It's been over a month since I quit World of Warcraft (for the final time). Yesterday I uninstalled all the video games from my laptop, which consisted of World of Warcraft, Warcraft III, and Starcraft II. I'm also going to pack up all the game boxes, including all the Xbox 360 game boxes, and tuck them in my closet. Video games will no longer waste my time. I have vowed that I will not play any video games until after I have lived a very satisfying life full of sex and love. The only instance in which I would break that vow is if I

Page 60 give up all hope. I do not want to think about that. My mind will NOT go there! It will not happen. This hope ... it will drive me to happiness.

This is it. This period of my life is the most important, the most crucial. This is the time to act. I am going to dedicate every single day, every single second of every day, to becoming successful and fulfilling those delicious desires of mine. The reward is so [one canceled word] sweet ... the love ... the sex ... I could one day be on top of all [two canceled words] the people I envy, all the people who have slighted me! Leo, Addison, Jeffrey B██████, Roy, Justin, and all the rest ... One day I could be

Page 61 in a better position than them! I will make up for all the slights. The day could be soon, so very soon. I just need to get rid of my doubts and truly believe in myself, just like the Law of Attraction is teaching me.

I got my new DVD of The Secret in the mail. I will be watching it every day, or every other day, so that it will further help me on my road to success. My parents don't really believe in the concept of the Law of Attraction, and I've read people's opinions of it online. Many people think it's bullshit. I must say I am a bit skeptical myself. I've always been skeptical

Page 62 about things. For the Law of Attraction though, I'm going to throw away all skepticism, all doubt, and truly believe that it's real. I won't let other people stop me. I will cling to this concept like a drowning man clings to a floating log. In truth, that's a very accurate analogy. I will believe in this concept because I am so, so desperate. Who knows? It could actually work! By using the Law of Attraction I could attain that happy life I want. It could be the key to love and sex.

College today was a challenge. An emotional challenge. The young lovers that I see there always put me in a foul mood. How will I

Page 63 deal with this? Next time I just won't look at them. I won't pay any attention to them. Instead, I will focus on my goal and what I will be. My goal will come to fruition; I will soon live a more pleasurable life than them. I will focus on the pleasure I will have once I've risen above them.

The film of The Secret is phenomenal. I'm watching it right now. I feel like all the doctors and psychologists presented in the film are talking directly to me, guiding me towards a happy life.

I won't forget those horrible

Page 64 words Addison A ██████ said to me last year. "No girl in this whole world will ever want to fuck you unless they are drunk." It was the worst insult anyone has ever said to me. One of the cruelest slights. I hated him for it. I still hate him now; I will always hate him. When he said those mean words to me, I believed him, because of my circumstances and my status as a lonely virgin.

Thinking back on it now, I realize how insecure I am. Why would I give him that power? He was just saying it to hurt me, and I let him. He doesn't think for the entire female population! I'm going to prove him wrong. I will prove Page 65 him very, very wrong.

Karate class yesterday was spectacular. I'm really improving and becoming a better fighter. I especially love sparring against the other members; it's invigorating. My inner rage helps me tremendously when I fight.

2/18/2011

The pills my doctor prescribed me recently to treat social anxiety have been a disaster. I gave up on them. The side effects make me too drowsy and tired and they give me headaches. Looks like I would have to rely on my

Page 66 mind and positive thinking to overcome my shyness.

Today I went to the bookstore Barnes and Noble. I go there often these days. I'm trying to gain as much knowledge as I can to help me on my path to success.

I always sit by the window when I read books there, it gives a good view of the Calabasas Commons and the mountains on the horizon. The Calabasas Commons are always full of people I envy, for example rich teenagers, so when they come into view I just move my chair further in the store by a few inches so that I don't see the sight. Then I concentrate on the Page 67 book I'm reading and think about the success I will have. I will make up for everything, I promise myself.

2/19/2011

This whole concept of "The Secret" and the law of attraction that I've been studying seems so far-fetched. I felt so excited and hopeful when I first read about it, though I'm still a bit skeptical and doubtful. I don't want to be doubtful. I want to believe in it! I want [one canceled word] to believe that I can attract the life I so desire. I want to feel worthy of such a life. I [two canceled words] think believing in the law of attraction is my only hope right now.

My unsatisfied sexual desires torture me every day! It is so hard to bear. I even have difficulty sleeping at night because of it. My great desire to make love is so strong, so unyielding. For the last six years I've been so longing for sex and pleasure so desperately, and I was never able to attain it. Six years gone, six years wasted! Six years I will never get back. But, that doesn't mean I can't make up for it in the future.

I can only dream and imagine what it would feel like to make love to a beautiful girl. Oh, the ultimate euphoria! The perfect

Page 69 heaven! I fantasize about it daily ... a beautiful girl lying before me, looking up at me with love and lust, begging me to pleasure her ... I imagine myself licking all her sensitive spots, driving her wild with ecstasy. The taste must be amazing ... and then the thought of penetrating her with my erect penis while she runs her hands all over my body and kisses [one canceled word] me ... ah, pure bliss! I could go on and on.

The thought that other teenagers, even those younger than me, get to experience such pleasure makes me feel so angry and envious. I deserve it too! Am I not human like the rest of them? Sexual envy has been my life for so long and

Page 70 it's pathetic. I really need to stop this now. I need to fulfill my desires and make up for what I've lost out on. I've thought of giving up so many times, of accepting a fate of celibate hell. Now I realize, through positive thinking, that there are still possibilities for me! I'm only nineteen. There's still [a] chance for me to have lots of sex in the future and make up for lost time. The revelation fills me with excitement.

2/23/2011

College went ok today. I practiced concentrating on myself and my goals instead of the success of others. As I walked through the campus I gazed at the beauty of the environment;

Page 71 the trees, the gardens, the mountains in the distance, and that helped me calm my anxious mind. I wasn't bothered by the sight of any lovers today. I didn't notice any at all. This is an [one canceled word] improvement for me.

Even though I didn't see any couples at college today, I always feel very lonely. I always feel lonely because I'm always alone. When I got home and entered my lonely room, I almost sank into yet another depression. I can't let all this bring me down.

2/24/2011

Today is day 55 of the new year. I think I'm making some progress. I now make better use of my time

Page 72 than ever before and I'm strengthening my character and focus.

Despite my recent progress, I will worry every day about what I could possible [sic] do to reach fulfillment. I still don't know. I have goals, but no organized plans for accomplishing them. Each day I search my mind for ways. Could I write the brilliant epic story that I've been formulating in my mind? I've toyed with the idea so many times, but the prospect seems so daunting. I've tried to write a few stories in my past, but it always turns out so mediocre.

A great shame of mine is the fact that I'm still living in my

Page 73 mother's apartment. I want to leave so badly but I have no where [sic] else to go. I can't live at my father's house because his bitch of a wife will never allow it. People probably look down at me because I still live with my mother, but what the hell am I supposed to do? The only way I can move out is if I get my own residence and the only way to do that is to get money. I'm not privileged like all those assholes in universities who get to live in dorms/fraternities because their parents pay for it.

Money. All my goals and dreams can only be fulfilled through the acquisition of money. That is my ultimate [one canceled word] goal, to become very

Page 74 wealthy so that I can make up for the six, almost seven, years I lost in my teens and to rise above all the horrible scoundrels who slighted and belittled me in life. Even though I plan to become wealthy, I still need to do something now that will get me some immediate cash. I need some initial money to get myself started.

Living in my mother's apartment is extremely counterproductive. It's depressing, aggravating, and people view me as a loser because of it. Girls won't have sex with a nineteen-year old loser living in his mother's apartment; and I have to lose my virginity before I turn twenty or else I will feel so defeated ... I don't

Page 75 even want to imagine ...

I often feel a sense of injustice at the fact that younger teenagers are able to have sex and still live with their parents because they are younger and don't need to live on their own to be attractive. I'm older than them so it should be easier, not harder, for me to get laid! It is so unfair. They also have the advantage of being in high school, which is a much more social environment than this detestable community college I go to called Moorpark.

I need to move out of my mother's apartment by all means, and fast! How? I refuse to work a low-life labor job, especially after my experiences last summer. It would be

Page 76 a terribly lethal blow to my self-esteem, which is already weak to begin with. Even if I did work such a job, the pitiful income it would provide will fail to pay for even a one-bedroom apartment. How else am I to acquire fast money though? besides playing the lottery and trying to use the law of attraction to win? I really don't know. I don't have any other means right now. But, I do have a mind, and with a mind, I can think of ways. I better think fast.

Today is the birthday of my little half-brother, Jazz. I just went to the Target store in West

Page 77 Hills to buy his present, a Star Wars action figure. I hope he likes it. The boy is six years old now and growing fast. I've been paying great attention to his personal growth throughout his life, trying to get an idea of what kind of person the boy will become.

This past week has been unfortunately fruitless to my eventual success due to an abhorrent cold and cough I've contracted. I had to get a lot of sleep during the day because my cough kept me up at night. I was too weak to go to the gym to lift weights, an activity that I'm really trying to focus on at this point in my life in

Page 78 order to look more muscular and thus more attractive to girls. I also spent way too much time masturbating this week, something I really need to cut down on so that I can build up more energy and drive in me. Masturbating depresses me too, because I realize how pathetic I must be by doing it . . . imaginarily stimulating [one canceled word] myself while other teenagers get to experience the real thing. Very detrimental to my success. Overall, this week has been a disastrous waste of time. I'm glad this cold is starting to fade away, though I'm still coughing every couple of minutes which is very annoying.

I had a dismal walk at Serrania Park today. I could imagine what the other people there must have thought, seeing an odd teenager walking alone aimlessly through the grass with his head down. They must have thought I was an absolute freak. Everyone at the park was with someone else, and I was all alone.

I had a lot on my mind as I strolled through the park without direction. I was feeling hopelessly frustrated with myself and society. My desire is to be desired. I don't know how I can get a beautiful girl to fall in love with me. I'm not the kind of guy that girls are attracted to. I'm a nice guy

Page 80 and I want to treat girls with love and care, but it seems like they will never give me a chance. It seems that girls are only attracted to complete jerks. Every time I see a hot girl with a boyfriend, the guy looks like a total asshat. I am shocked and offended by how such beauty can be violated.

As I sat on a lonely bench at Serrania Park I mulled over all of my frustrations. I tried to cheer myself up by looking at the different colors of the trees and the pretty flowers, but my inner turmoil became too much to bear. When I arrived home I broke down and cried.

Two days ago I had a memorable

Page 81 experience that affected me deeply, though the incident itself was so small it would seem trivial to anyone else. It happened when I went to King's restaurant with my family for dinner. While we were waiting to be seated, a girl who was also waiting actually looked at me, and I don't know what to make of it. She looked at me! Our eyes actually met! That is the first time a teenage girl has acknowledged my presence; usually they treat me like I'm invisible. She was there with her friends; another girl and a guy. I was very jealous of the guy and got very pumped up with anger. I felt like picking a fight with him, but thought better of it and stepped outside to calm down. I

Page 82 kept thinking of the girl who looked at me. Did she look at me because she thought I was weird? or ... I wonder ... Did she maybe think I was attractive? Was that it? Was a girl really attracted to me? I hope so! The possibility that she could have thought of me as attractive makes me feel so elated. Then again, I don't know how she felt about me or what the look meant, which is frustrating.

There are so many beautiful girls in the world! It amazes me to no end! Life would be meaningless and dull if I cannot have their company, their attention, their lust, Page 83 their love! It is not too late. They won't disappear! They don't even know I exist right now, but that doesn't mean it will always be this way. I have the power to shape my future. I have my whole future ahead of me to enjoy the pleasures of beautiful girls.

3/9/2011

Intense frustration has been plaguing me recently. This is because of my sexual frustration. I feel so stuck and lost. How am I ever going to get a girl to want me? I must stay strong! I cannot let my frustrations consume me! I've been thinking too many negative thoughts, and that will only decrease my chances of having sex. Must think positively!

This diary is now at its end. This is my first diary. I remember starting this more than a year ago, back in 2009; but I tore out and discarded the 2009 pages because they were too full of anger and hate, a part of me I want to banish and leave in the past. My constant frustrations have recently been threatening to make me regress back to previous, hateful ways of thinking. I can't let that happen. That is defeat. I'm trying to remain hopeful and positive that things will work out for me. I hope with all my heart that the pages of my next diary will be filled with lovely experiences and good times.

Here begins a new diary of my life. And what a complicated life I've lived! No one on this world has such a unique mindset as I have. My view of the world is so different from everyone else's. Why? Well, I'm sure many factors play into [one canceled word] it, but I know that the main reason for why I am the way I am is my past experiences. All the loneliness I've had to endure, all the rejection, the alienation, the exclusion! All that and more has made my life a struggle.

The struggle must be won; but in a good way, a positive way. I wish to love and be loved. I want to be accepted by society. I want girls to be attracted to me. So far, I've known only the opposite. So far, I am still frustrated and sad. I haven't given up hope though; there is still a little over a hundred days until I turn twenty. There is plenty of time. I need to make a great push of effort to achieve all my goals and desires, and trust that I am worthy of the opposite sex, despite my circumstances. Everyone who has insulted and slighted me in the past ... I want

Page 87 to prove them all wrong. I want to prove to them that I'm better than they are. They think I'm a loser, but I'm not! I will be a winner.

Time is moving much too fast for my liking. It's already April, damnit! In the beginning of 2011 I resolved to do everything I can to change my life for the better before I turn twenty. Now, three months have passed and I haven't accomplished much. And this is causing me many episodes of anger and frustration which is only making my situation worse.

I'm still a virgin and an outcast, and if I keep at this pace I'll be in the same position even when I'm twenty years old. How sad is that?! I read online that boys are having sex at age thirteen. In fact, I've read about it many times. It's not fair! They are younger than me and have been loved and pleased by girls, and here I am, almost twenty, lonely and unwanted. How do they do it? What do they have that I don't? It's like they were born with some sort of special ability. I hate them for it.

Page 88 All these self-help books about positive thinking and the law of attraction don't seem to be helping either. I've tried all the tips they give me and I'm still miserable. Was I just born to fail?

Recently I've been trying to perfect my British accent, which I haven't spoken in for quite some time. I have two accents: American and British. I've grown used to speaking in my American accent as I've lived in California for almost fifteen years now, but I can still change it back to British if I try hard, I just need to get accustomed to it again. I hope that if I use my British accent more often I'll attract more attention from girls. I heard that American girls think British accents are sexy. We'll see.

I hate my sister so much. All my life she's treated me as if I'm a loser. She has absolutely no respect for me. I'm her older brother and far more intelligent and yet she acts as if she is the older and smarter one. I try hard to be nice to her and get

Page 89 along, but she just ruins it by insulting and provoking me day after day. It causes me to react with seething rage because I have so much built up anger inside me from all the rejection and mistreatment I've had to endure from society. My sister is an unsympathetic, heartless bitch.

The release date for the new “Song of Ice and Fire” book, called A Dance with Dragons, by George R.R. Martin, has finally been announced! I am very excited to read it. This fantasy series is my personal favorite.

It’s to be released on July 12, which is dangerously close to my 20th birthday. On the book’s website I found a countdown toward the day it will be released. This countdown is very significant to me. As the release date is so close to my 20th birthday, I’m treating this countdown of my last days as a teenager. I made the website page my homepage so I can see the countdown every day. It fills me with so much dread every time I look at it. I realize how little time I have. As of right now

Page 90 there’s 89 days, 5 hours, 31 minutes, and 5 seconds until the book will be released on July 12. Once the countdown falls to zero, I’ll only have 12 more days as a teenager, since my birthday is on the 24th. I really, really need to act fast and come up with a plan for a better life.

My life is so dismal. I feel so lost and alone. I have no friends, and girls don’t want to have anything to do with me. They treat me like a loser, an alien. I feel unwanted and worthless, and the pain only grows as time goes on. It is torture. I try every day not to panic.

I’ve been doing a lot of practice writing lately. I have written a couple short stories and scenarios on my computer. I even showed one of them to my parents and they said I have real writing talent. That reassured me quite a bit. Perhaps this can be a career path for me. It could be my path to success!

I haven’t forgotten about the epic story plan I came up with Page 91 almost a year ago. In fact, I’ve actually been giving it a lot of thought, and improved on it. I have two epic story ideas now which are quite similar to one another. I haven’t really gotten around to writing about it yet. That’s the issue. I’ve had too many doubts about myself and thus haven’t taken positive action.

I just got back from the gym. I have been doing a lot of extensive working-out. My main focus from this is to look more attractive to girls. Maybe girls will actually show an interest in me if I make my body more muscular. I’m trying hard to get broader shoulders and develop six-pack abs. Everyone knows girls love abs.

I started working-out well over a year ago, though I stopped doing it that much when I [one canceled word] played World of Warcraft back in late 2010. Now I’m starting to really work on training my body again. I go to the gym every single day now, for the last three months. So far, disappointingly, my body hasn’t been showing much improvement. This often frustrates me.

Page 92 I went to my father’s house for dinner yesterday and it was a nice experience. We talked about many things. I got to spend some time with my little brother, Jazz. He is growing very fast. He certainly is much bigger than I was when I was his age. He is quite a talker too, as well as very loud and feisty. It is a bit worrying. Perhaps it’s just a phase.

The new HBO series, Game of Thrones, was absolutely spectacular. I enjoyed every minute of it. I love how it accurately follows the story of the books. I can't wait to watch the next episode.

4/20/2011

I hate Moorpark College so much. I've been there for almost a year now and I still feel like an outsider every time I walk through that clean, concrete campus. I'm invisible there ... a loser. I haven't made a single friend. Not only that, but I've barely had any conversations with people! Why don't these arrogant, exclusive young people want to talk to me?

Page 93 Why don't these people ever try to initiate friendship with me? Why don't people accept me? Young people [one canceled word] are just arrogant, selfish, cold-hearted bullies.

I've been mistreated by other young people all throughout my teenage years, and now it's happening at Moorpark. When I walk to my classes I see other young people together in groups; I see other men talking with pretty girls; I see couples kissing and fondling each other. And I am all alone. Instead of accepting me and welcoming me, they give me this arrogant "I'm better than you" look. They exclude me and look down upon me. How dare they!

4/21/2011

The fact that I have a sex drive but [am] unable to fulfill it, makes me feel so unnatural. I should be having sex, but I can't because girls don't want to have sex with me. They don't even consider me. It makes me feel so unwanted and worthless. I don't even feel human because of this. Every day I feel a deep surge of pain in the core of my being when I think about how

Page 94 unwanted and undesired I am to the world.

This past week I've been very depressed; the most debilitating depression of this year, in fact. I didn't get anything done. Nothing at all. I didn't even have the will to go to the gym to exercise. I spent a lot of time sitting in my room feeling sad and brooding over Addison A██████'s horrible words. I am so ashamed; so much time wasted.

5/9/2011

It's already May. Oh, how fast time flies! There's only 63 days left on the countdown now. I'm doing a lot of intensive research on the law of attraction, trying to see if I can use this mysterious concept to make my life happy. I try to think positively, but it's such a struggle! Everyday [sic] I'm reminded of how lonely and unwanted I am.

5/10/2011

My semester at Moorpark College is almost at an end. There's only one Page 95 more week left. I need to study for a final exam that's coming up, but I just can't find the incentive. I've had a miserable time at this college, and that affects how much effort I put into studying for these damn classes. I want to do my best and get good grades; the problem is that my sadness and anger depresses me, draining away all my motivation.

Seeing couples in public is so torturous. I cannot stand it. Especially when these people publicly display affection for one another. It makes me feel so inferior, as if I'm not good enough to experience such heaven and can only watch others doing it. If the guy is younger than me then it's a hundred times worse. The other day, at the mall I saw a high school kid walking around with his hot girlfriend and it filled me with RAGE.

Well, the semester is finally over. I am done with Moorpark. Done, done, done. Every day I went to that Page 96 college I would always [one canceled word] depart it feeling sad and upset. I was such an outcast there, just as I am an outcast everywhere else. I've always been the outcast.

At Moorpark I felt like everyone had a group of friends, and I was the only one left out. No one ever talked to me, no one ever paid any attention to me. And the girls! There were so many hot girls there, just looking at them made my whole body and soul tingle with desire. Not one of them even gave me a second look. Hell, they didn't even give me a first look. Whenever they walked past me they would tilt their beautiful heads away. I was nothing to them. It hurts me so much. Just thinking about it makes me want to cry. These girls willingly give their affection to other men, yet they treat me like scum. It is so unfair! How could they choose other men over me? How dare they treat me this way! What mean, evil creatures they are. How can such beauty be so evil?

I don't want to go back to Moorpark. I really, really don't.

Page 97 I can't stand it there. I feel too frustrated and sad. Next semester I'll go to a different college. But, how would another college be any different? I will still be excluded, wouldn't I? I would still be a loser. Oh, this is all so dreadful.

5/24/2011

The law of attraction is such an alluring theory. For many months I've been wrestling with myself on whether to try to fully believe and practice it or to dismiss it as a waste of energy and emotion. Sometimes it makes me feel so hopeful, other times it makes me feel like a fool to believe in it, especially after reading about what other people say; and that dashes my hopes.

6/7/2011

Back in January my parents and I talked about the possibility of me moving to Santa Barbara for college. They agreed that they would pay for all my funds and expenses if I move there. I had previously done some research on Santa Barbara city college and the town itself, and found that it is a

Page 98 great place to live and go to college. When I did that research, I felt a glimmer of hope. It is indeed a hopeful prospect: A different town, a new college, living out of my mother's house. Could this be a chance to get the love and acceptance I so crave for? I wondered. Maybe I could get a girlfriend there! I thought. I remember feeling so enthusiastic about it. I felt like it was something I had to do, to get the life of love and companionship that I've always wanted.

And now here I am. I have moved out of my mother's house. I am living in Isla Vista, which is part of Santa Barbara and next to UCSB [University of California Santa Barbara], which is where I'm considering transferring to after community college. Here I am, living in beautiful Santa Barbara, in an area with lots of college students and lots of hot girls. I've lived here three days now, and my hope is starting to wane. In fact, I had doubts about this even before I moved here. After going through the first few months of 2011 and feeling more and more disappointed with each lonely day, I started to think that moving to Santa Barbara would be pointless. Yes, there are many college students here;

Page 99 Yes, there are lots of hot girls here. But there were lots of hot girls at Moorpark College too. I didn't get any attention from girls at Moorpark, so how can I expect to get girls and fit in here? I was excluded at Moorpark. What if I'm also excluded at Santa Barbara? This is really worrying.

Even though I had these doubts, I still moved here because I am so desperate. My life needs a change. I will do anything to fulfill my desires. Oh, how lovely life would be if I can have my desires come true! Love, lust, passion, wealth, beautiful girls ... so sweet ... so heavenly. I want to make love to a beautiful girl. I want her to love me, I want to be her man. I would feel so special. Right now I can only dream, only hope.

I drove around Santa Barbara to explore and observe. It truly is a beautiful city. It's like Malibu and Calabasas combined. And of course, there are hot, beautiful girls [one canceled word] everywhere! Especially at the college I'm going to. I've already walked all over the campus and spotted so

Page 100 many gorgeous beauties. This should be a good thing. For other guys it probably is. For me though ... well, I don't know what to feel. Whenever I see a beautiful girl, and she just walks by me without even looking at me, I feel so inferior. I wish I was attractive enough for girls. I should be. I deserve to be.

The mere sight of beautiful girls gives me so many conflicting emotions. They turn me on. They make my whole body tingle with desire. I want to love them, to be with them. And then I feel frustrated and sad. Girls have ignored me my whole life. Their affection seems impossible to attain. Such heavenly pleasure exists in this world, and I am unable to have it. Whenever I see a hot girl I always think "why can't I be WITH HER?" Why [one canceled word] do I always have to be alone and have to watch other guys enjoy hot girls? Why do girls go for other guys, [one canceled word] but not me? I am a nice, generous guy, willing to love a girl and treat her with the utmost affection, and yet girls are always giving their love and attention to horrible jerks! It makes me boil with rage.

Tomorrow is my first day at the new college. Santa Barbara City College. I am feeling anxious and worried about it, but also excited. With a new college comes many new opportunities, a chance to start fresh. I'll just go in with hopes and smiles, and hope for the best. I am so scared about what I might possibly see there: a young couple; hot girls walking with "hot" douchebag guys; a guy kissing his hot girl friend. Such sights will break my heart, tear at my soul, stab my ego, consume me with rage! I'll just have to try not to concentrate on them, pretend they don't exist. Yes, that's what I'll do. If I catch a glimpse of one I'll just keep looking away. I will think to myself that I am better than them and that before long I will be much more successful and make up for my loss.

My first week at the new college is over, and I've already dropped one of my two classes. It was my History class, and it was hell. There were some hot, beautiful girls there, but they never paid any attention to me. They talked to the other guys in the class, but not me! There were so many guys in that class who were stealing the girls from me. I hated watching them casually flirting with the girls. I hate them. I just couldn't stand it anymore, and after two days I decided to drop it.

My only other class is Geography, which isn't as bad. Only having one class this summer gives me more time to concentrate on my true goal, which is finding a way to get rich very fast. I really need to get rich as soon as possible. It's the only way to make up for my lack of love and sex.

I've lived in Santa Barbara for over a month now, and so far I am not satisfied. I am all alone here. I have absolutely no one to talk to. This is not how I was hoping it to be [sic]. I live in Isla Vista! A college town! And I'm all alone. I don't know anyone here, and no one knows I exist.

It's not like I'm not trying. Every night I walk around the town alone or sit in cafes/restaurants [sic], hoping someone would talk to me, but no one has the heart to reach out! There are so many young people here, but they're all walking in groups. They look at me walking alone as if I am [one canceled word] some weirdo. They are such cruel, heartless bastards.

I read online that Isla Vista and Santa Barbara are full of hot college girls. That was one of the main factors that made me decide to move here. And it's true! This place is full of beautiful girls! Especially blondes ... [one canceled word] my favorite. But, now that I've been here for a while, I've realized the horrible truth: There are so many other men here to steal them from me! What's [one canceled word] worse is that these girls seem to prefer the tall, jock guys instead of a nice gentleman like myself. It's such an injustice!

7/13/2011

It's July 13th. A Dance with Dragons was released yesterday. The countdown is over, and there remains less than two weeks before my twentieth birthday!

My emotions have been in so much turmoil because of this. A [sic] feel so ashamed. Everything seems so bleak and hopeless.

What is wrong with me? Why are other guys able to have sex, and not me? I'm turning TWENTY soon. I will be a twenty-year-old virgin. How sad ... I feel so worthless, never having been loved and embraced by a girl. Why do girls hate me so much? What is wrong with me?

I crave for sex [two canceled words] and pleasure and love! I think about it all the time, the desire never escapes me. I always imagine it in my mind ... my beautiful dream girl with lovely blonde hair and blue or green eyes, and a face to die for. Oh, how I wish I could lick her from head to toe, and then make sweet, passionate love to her. And then we would cuddle afterward, our bodies intertwined in complete bliss. That is heaven ... the sweetest heaven. I wish it were real. Why can't I do it for real? Why, why, [written heavily]: why

Ten days! I only have ten days left as a teenager. I bet there's teenagers [one canceled word] who are younger than me having sex right this very second. Here I am writing about my lack of sex while other teenage males are having sex. They are so much higher in life than me, and I can't stand it. This is tearing at my soul.

What do I do? This is getting way out of hand. I need to do something drastic. A desperate situation requires drastic action. I live in Isla Vista now, there has to be something I can do. Perhaps I should walk all over the town and not go home until I talk to a girl. I tried that last weekend though, and ended up going to bed alone and crying in despair because of all the happy young couples I saw walking around. I don't want a repeat of that night, I really don't. But what else is there to do? Maybe I should just give it another try. What if I end up meeting a beautiful girl who's actually interested in me. Do I dare hope?

7/24/2011

I dreaded this. For many months I dreaded this. Now I'm writing down the moment. I am 20 years old. 20 years old, and a virgin. I remember when I turned 18 and was feeling bad about it. Back then I was hoping that by now I would have been loved and sexed by a girl ... Well, two years have passed and I'm still lonely and unwanted, while other [one canceled word] men are pleased and happy. I'm still in the same damnable position.

My journey in Santa Barbara has taken many strange turns, but not for the better, it pains me to say.

First, my walks in Isla Vista have been horrible experiences of shame, anger, and rejection. Everytime [sic] I walk around Isla Vista I see all these guys hanging out and walking with hot girls, or a guy walking with hot girls, or a guy walking and holding hands with a hot girl. And I'm all alone. Hot girls in Isla Vista don't even look at me.

Secondly, I just moved into a new apartment unit because I wanted my own single room. The apartment

I'm in is very much like a dorm, and they randomly pair people with flatmates. Well, two new flatmates just moved into the other room in my unit and ... they are definitely not the kind of flatmates I expected nor wanted. In fact, they are absolutely horrible, and I despise them. They are immature, obnoxious louts who go out of their way to annoy me. Normally I wouldn't associate with these kind of people, but now I have to live in the same apartment unit as these scum? Are you fucking kidding me?

Fortunately, I don't have to live with them, because I just went to the management office and told them my situation. They said that I can transfer to yet another unit, but this one costs an extra 100 dollars a month, upping my rent to 900 monthly. I [one canceled word] agreed to go for the transfer. I will not spend my college life living with those repugnant idiots. [twenty-seven canceled words] I am to move in two weeks. Hopefully my new [one canceled word] flatmate will be more

I am having such bad luck with my experience in Santa Barbara. Why? What have I done to deserve this? This is now how my college experience should be turning out! I must stay hopeful, I must. Hopefully when I move to my new better place things will work out. The school semester hasn't started yet ... maybe when I start school I'll meet a girlfriend and find love ... who knows? Just stay positive.

My mother just moved to a new house yesterday, and I returned home to help her with the move. I'm returning home every weekend now, until I move to my new dorm on September 5th. My visits to home gives [sic] me a nice, peaceful break from the misfortunes and ill luck that I have to face in Santa Barbara.

9/14/2011

I hate Santa Barbara, and I hate my new college! It's even worse than Moorpark! There are so many hot girls, especially blondes — just the kind that I like, and yet none of Page 109 them even give me a second look! WHY? Do they think they are too good for ME? And I see all these other guys who can easily get their attention. I hate these people so much. I hate them, I hate them, I hate them.

I really cannot believe it ... I've done the unthinkable. I have started playing World of Warcraft again. Fuck this damnable game! This is the second time I've gone back to it after quitting. I know it's a complete waste of time, but I just had to. Had to! It's a pitiful way to escape from this sick world, this society that makes a mockery of me.

I really feel that playing this game is the only thing I can do to escape, or at least get some sense of escape. Every time I go to school I walk by all these beautiful young people walking and talking and laughing together; couples holding hands and kissing. And I cannot bear the sight. It wounds me, just like it has all throughout my teenage years. It's even worse now because Page 110 I'm older and still a loner virgin. I never talk to anyone at school, and no one ever talks to me. [one canceled word] I always go home from school crying. When I get home to my lonely apartment, what can I do but play World of Warcraft in order to retain some semblance of sanity?

I've been living in my new dorm for more than a week now. It's so lonely here all by myself. Whole days go by without me talking to anyone. My new flatmate moves in in a few days from now. I hope I can get along with [one canceled word] him.

My new flatmate has now moved in. He's a short, stocky guy named Spencer. Although he's not the best I could have hoped for, he seems mature enough, and so it shouldn't be an unpleasant experience living with him. I was hoping for someone who could be my friend though ... someone who could help me out with my problems ... someone like ... Max. This Spencer doesn't seem like the type who would do that. We just

Page 111 don't click, for some reason. Oh well, at least he's mature and clean. I should be glad he's not a rowdy asshole like my old flatmates.

This month has been absolutely horrible. I feel so terribly lonely here in Santa Barbara, even with this new flatmate living in my apartment. Sometimes I would walk around Isla Vista to try to make friends or meet girls, but I always end up walking back alone, crying. I cry myself to sleep sometimes. My flatmate has probably heard me crying, even from the other room. How embarrassing. I thought he was out; but found out he was in his room the whole time. He must think I'm such a loser, always coming back from Isla Vista without any girl. Every other college student in Isla Vista is having sex but me, and It's NOT FAIR!

I'm starting to hate my flatmate, just because he is there to witness me in my shame. It's a good thing that he is also not bringing back any girls to his room. If he did, I would be so jealous and angry and

Page 112 I would hate him even more. He once bragged to me that he used to have a girlfriend. How dare he! How the fuck can an ugly, short little man like Spencer have a girlfriend and not me?? Maybe he's lying. Or maybe his girlfriend is ugly too. Yeah, that's probably the case. I should let it be.

I've been playing WoW [World of Warcraft] online with my friend James E. [REDACTED] a lot this month. James is an old friend of mine. I met him in first grade, and we're still friends to this day, though recently there has been some conflict between us.

James and I have a lot in common and I think we are in rather similar positions in life. We have similar problems, especially when it comes to girls. We always talk about our fantasies of revenge and power because of it. I always loved talking to him about my hunger for power and wealth, about how awesome it would be to be powerful and wreak destruction on those who have made my life miserable! He was, in fact, the only person I could talk to about this, and I thought that he felt the same way.

Page 113 I was wrong. When James and I had these conversations, he was just joking whereas I was completely serious. This is where we differ greatly. This is where the conflict arises. I really thought he was like me, and I want to believe it. But no, his heart is too soft. He's weak. It's a real pity. I enjoyed those conversations we had. It was a way for me to vent my anger and express myself. But I went a little too far with some of the things I said, and I seem to have disturbed him greatly. That damn little weakling! This is probably why he's been acting so cold towards me lately.

For example, we were once discussing what we would do if we [one canceled word] became [one canceled word] dictators with absolute power. I told him of all the torturous things I would do to females if I had the power, as revenge for how females treat me today. And it's true. If I become dictator of the U.S. I would completely degrade the female population; give them the pain they gave me. When I talked to James about this, I seem to have really scared him. Not only scared him ... but disgusted him. He avoided me

Page 114 for a few weeks afterward. I don't know why he would react this way! I really can't fathom it. He experiences the same rejection from girls as I do. He is a virgin just like me. So why doesn't he have the same desire for revenge? I have contempt for weaklings like James E██████.

My life flows in such a vicious circle. I keep losing hope and then regaining it, only to lose it again when my hope doesn't manifest into what I want. Yet I keep clinging to hope. I keep believing, or wanting to believe that there is a chance, a way, to live a successful, happy life; to experience love and sex and pleasure.

There has to be a way! There just has to be! I may be a 20 year old virgin, but that doesn't mean it's not to[o] late to have lots of sex in the future! Time is ticking. I need to do everything I can to get what I so crave for. I am so desperate, it's pathetic. I have quit WoW again ... this is the third time I've quit that game, and it will be the FINAL time. The month of Page 115 September was wasted because of my depression. I cannot let this continue. I even ... dropped two of my college classes. I can't believe it. It's still not too late though. I still have a chance. I could make up for those two classes next semester if things work out.

I've been making a huge effort to try to get a social life and meet some girls this month, despite how horrible the semester started out, but no matter how hard I try things don't seem to be changing! I'm still alone. I bought myself some nice new clothes, and I got an acquaintance of mine who is 22 to help buy me some alcohol. But what's the point of having alcohol if I have no girls to share it with?

Every weekend for the past 4 weeks I've walked down to the area in Isla Vista where all the college parties are. Sometimes I would go with these two new acquaintances of mine, named Andy and Stan, and sometimes I would go by myself. The results are always

Page 116 the same. I'm never invited to any of the college parties going on, and there are A LOT of them. I never meet any girls. Hell, the girls don't even give me a second look. I'm invisible to them. They would much rather be with all those rowdy obnoxious jocks and frat boys. All the hot girls flock to these [sic] type of guys, and I hate them for it. I am a nice sophisticated gentleman, and these beautiful girls would much rather fool around with slobs. The more I see this, the more I am filled with burning hatred.

11/2/2011

Another month has gone by now, and I made a huge effort this month. But still ... nothing. How long can I keep doing this? How much torture and humiliation can I take from the world? I must be very strong, to have survived the cruelties of the world for this long.

I just don't give up. I could have given up years ago, but the hope of experiencing sex and love in the future kept me pressing on. Every Page 117 second of each day I think about a happy future for myself. A future in which I'm the man I want to be, a future where I can have sex and be loved by beautiful girls! I want to have a beautiful wife and make love to her every night, and have children with her. Is that impossible for me? What's the point of living then, if I can never have that? I should stop writing now ... I'm starting to cry.

The Halloween weekend was horrible. It's the time of the year when this college town is the most crazy. The streets here were packed with college kids walking around in their little groups and cliques, acting immature and obnoxious to everyone.

I of course went out for a stroll to see what opportunities would come my way. On Saturday and Sunday I went out by myself, and on Monday I went with Andy and Stan and a few of their friends. During these times I experienced things and saw things that were very hurtful. I saw guys walking around with Page 118 their hot girlfriends, which enraged me tremendously! I saw guys kissing and making out with hot girls in front of everyone. They must have felt like kings! On Friday I was sitting at Silvergreens restaurant by myself and I saw this guy hanging out with three hot blonde girls. They were all laughing together. And the guy was a total douchebag! I hate him so much. If only I could snap my fingers and he would die a horrible, painful death.

It pains me to write about this. I feel so full of hatred and anger, and writing about it makes those horrible memories come back. I will stop now before I have another emotional breakdown.

I feel so insecure everytime [sic] I go out now. I feel as if everyone thinks I'm a loser. But I'm not ... I know I'm not! I'm not meant to be a loser. That's just what this cruel world wants me to think. In truth, they are the losers and I'm the winner. I'll show them, I'll show them all!

Page 119 I always dress very well now, in expensive designer clothes. It makes me feel better about myself when I go out in public. I have a decent amount of money saved up from the monthly allowance that my parents and grandma give me, and I've been spending some of it on nice clothes. The more I do it, the better I feel. I look good in designer clothes, such as Hugo Boss and Armani, my favorites.

It's Thanksgiving holiday now, and I'm back in my hometown for a week. For some reason my visits home are very relieving. It's like taking a break from my troubles in Santa Barbara.

Yesterday I went with my mother to a Thanksgiving party at Rob L█████'s house. Rob is a family friend. The Thanksgiving was at one of his houses in the Palisades. James E█████ was there, and so were these two douchebags named Julian and Leo.

There are two people named Leo whom I hate very much. Leo B█████, the son of my father's friend, and Leo R█████, the son

Page 120 of one of Rob's friends. The Leo at this party was Leo R█████. He is a couple years older than me, and his brother Julian is a year younger than me, I believe. Both brothers are loud, obnoxious, pot-smoking douchebags who always brag about all the girls they get, and they never shut up. I was hoping they would choke on their dinner, and I was sorely disappointed.

It was nice to see James there. Well, that's what I thought at first, [one canceled word] then I realized that [one canceled word] the last time the two of us spoke to each other we had a huge argument online. James acted very coldly towards me when he first saw me, which was very unreasonable because he was the one who was in the wrong when we had our argument. He later warmed up when we sat down for dinner, and we started talking as if we were friends again, catching up on old times and laughing at how foolish Julian and Leo were acting. Despite this, he was still very distant from me. He treated me as if I'm a different person. I fear that the kind of friendship we used to Page 121 have is gone forever.

Overall, the dinner was a pleasant experience. The food was great, Rob cooked a delicious turkey. It was nice to be there after so much loneliness in Santa Barbara.

11/28/2011

Last weekend I met up with my old friends, Philip and Addison. It's been a while since I've seen them. Addison and I don't fight anymore. He used to be a great enemy of mine, and I can never forgive him for the way he treated me back in 2009/2010, but recently we have come to certain agreements. The two of us are alike in a peculiar way. We have similar views of the world. Philip was the same as he's always been: a nice but weak person, pleasant to talk to and be around.

I enjoyed spending time with them. We met up at the Calabasas Commons and then we went in my car to a restaurant in L.A., and then to the Griffith Park Observatory. I've been there quite a few times. It has such a spectacular view of the city of L.A. I was scared I would see Page 122 some young couples there, as it is the kind of place that attracts [two canceled words] young couples who go there and make-out under the stars. [one canceled word] Thankfully, I didn't see any.

12/9/2011

Well, I just finished the semester at SBCC [Santa Barbara Community College]. School is over. I started this semester with five classes and high hopes for a better life. I ended up only completing two classes because I dropped the rest out of frustration. My parents don't know. They cannot know. I'll have to make up for this next year.

Why am I writing this? This should not be! I should not be in this position! I should have lost my virginity by now! Why, why, WHY? WHY does it have to be this way? Is this torture never going to end? Will I be forever alone? An entire SEMESTER has just passed and I haven't even gotten one girl's phone number in my cell phone. NOT EVEN ONE! This semester was supposed to be the period of my life where I finally get to experience the things

Page 123 I've missed out on for so long. I moved to Santa Barbara to get a new, fresh start and get the life I want; to have friends, to have a girlfriend, to have SEX, to go to parties, to be accepted, to do all the things people my age do. But no ... it didn't happen. None of it happened, even though it's all around me. Everyone else here does all those things. There are college parties all over the place here in Isla Vista. But am I invited? NO.

I am full of rage right now. I am still a virgin and an outcast. Everybody here hates me, and the girls are not attracted to me. They want to exclude me. Is every young person so exclusive and cruel? Everywhere I go I'm excluded. They don't consider me a part of them, and it's ridiculous. Am I not human? If I'm not then what am I? What is my [one canceled word] purpose? To be born on this world and shunned by the rest of humanity? Nobody wants me.

I'm honestly starting to think there is no hope left. Hope was what kept me going, but from the way things are turning out, it doesn't Page 124 seem like there is any hope. Am I doomed to be alone forever? I hate humanity for doing this to me!

12/19/2011

Back home in Woodland Hills again. I drove home a few days ago. My mother is allowing me to stay at home for a longer time because of the holidays. I feel that it's insulting that I need to have permission in order to return to my mother's home. I should be able to visit whenever I want. But this is the way it is now. Ever since I moved to Santa Barbara I was officially "kicked out" of my mother's household. She will never let me live in her house again, apart from my short allowed visits. Then again, I suppose it's for the best. When I think about the last couple of years living with my mom, they were years of loneliness and depression. My move to Santa Barbara was supposed to be a big step to change that, but it's all going so wrong.

Last weekend I went with my mother to a Christmas party at the L■■■■■■'s [sic]. They have quite a nice house, and their Christmas parties are always quite enjoyable.

Page 125 There was really good wine there. I've always loved drinking wine. It makes me feel relaxed and at ease.

James E■■■■■■ was there, and we talked a lot. He was acting more friendly this time, but I could still detect the bitterness he has towards me. I know he fears me, and he's too much of a coward to admit it.

12/20/2011

My great failure in Santa Barbara has caused me too much grief. I have calmed down somewhat, after going over things in my mind and looking for future possibilities. To make myself feel better I bought some new clothes this week; some new designer jeans from Nordstrom, a couple of Armani shirts, and a Hugo Boss jacket.

I'm starting a new semester at SBCC next year. This is a new chance for me. I'm taking lots of classes. Hopefully in one of them I will meet a beautiful girl who is attracted to me. There are always possibilities in the future. I can't give up yet. I just can't!

I keep failing, but then I regain my hope by looking to the [one canceled word] future.

Page 126 This cycle has repeated itself for years now. How long can I keep this up? When will I finally get what I want? I really don't know anymore. But so long as I see possibility in the future, I will cling to my hope.

12/22/2011

Tomorrow I'm leaving for England. I'm going to spend a week there. At the beginning of this month my mother called me and told me that she and my sister are going to England for the holidays and asked me if I wanted to come.

At first I said no. I felt that in this depressing period of my life it's best not to travel and visit family. But it's been about ten years since I've visited my home country. I haven't been on vacation for quite a while now, and we'll be staying at a nice hotel. I at last decided that I might as well go.

I felt frustrated about this because I'll be visiting family that I haven't seen in a long time, and at this point in my life I really don't want to show myself to people in my family because there is nothing good about me

Page 127 to show. I feel so ashamed of my life and I don't want people to see that. I'll have to hide it and pretend that all is good, but it will be very aggravating.

12/27/2011

I'm writing from my hotel in England. I've been here for a few days now and it's been a nice experience. My hotel room is quite comfortable and warm despite the damnably cold weather outside.

We spent Christmas with some family members on my mother's side. It was nice to see them, especially my grandma. It's been a long time since her last visit.

I haven't been back to England for such a long time. I've almost forgotten what it was like! The last time I was here I think I was 10 years old. Yes ... I was 10, it was the summer after I graduated from Topanga Elementary school.

It feels good to be here. The people are so much nicer and more polite than the people in California. I feel like there's a real sense of community here.

When I walked around the city of Colchester I saw a lot of pretty girls! And they seemed to be very nice too. Pretty girls who are actually nice?

Page 128 Can it be? That's almost unheard of in America. American girls are so mean and cruel. Perhaps it's different in England. This makes me wonder if my life would have been happier if I never moved to the U.S. If I had grown up in England, could I have lived the life I want? Would I have had a girlfriend? Would I not be a virgin? I'll never know the answer to that, because it's an alternate reality. The best thing I can do is concentrate on the future.

12/31/2011

Well, my trip to England is over and I'm back in California now. It was a nice trip, and it went by very fast. I got to see some very nice sights, explored London and Colchester, and went to some exquisite restaurants.

Now I'm back home, and it's the last day of the year! I can't believe how fast this year was, and how much I've failed. The world keeps pushing me down in the dirt, and I keep pressing on.

Today I'm going to the mall to shop for some new clothes. I got a lot of money from Christmas this year. Later tonight I'm going with my father and Page 129 step-mom to a New Year['s] eve party at their friend's house. I'm not really enthusiastic about it, but I have nowhere [sic] else to go for New Years. I am such a loner. At the party I'll probably end up sitting by myself the whole time, sipping on a glass of wine. Other young people will [one canceled word] be having so much fun tonight, and I'm not invited to any party except the one my parents go to. It's so sad.

I remember feeling this way last New Year, and the one before that. A feeling of ominous depression. I remember last New Year very clearly; I was on World of Warcraft ... and it was so dismal. I shouldn't dwell on it any further, or I'll get more depressed. Time to go shopping.

I just finished shopping and I feel quite satisfied with this new Hugo Boss shirt that I bought. It was $150 but it was so worth it! It is very flashy and stylish and it goes well with the golden necklace I got from my grandma for Christmas. I wear this golden necklace all the time now, it has become very special to me.

I think I'll wear this new shirt

Page 130 to the New Year's party tonight. It should make me feel more confident.

I got incredibly drunk last night. I had to ... I was too enraged and upset and I needed something to make me feel better, so I kept helping myself to more and more wine. I forgot how many glasses I had.

The party was at Vincent's parent's [sic] house. Vincent ... I hate that kid so much. His family has been friends with my father for many years. We met them through the B■■■■s. Vincent is the same age as my sister, four years younger than me. When I was thirteen he was nine, and he used to come over a lot with his parents. He was a little kid compared to me, and he actually looked up to me! He would always watch me play video games and ask me questions about them. Now, I am twenty and he is sixteen. He has a girlfriend, and I don't. He has lots of friends that he parties with, and I don't!!!

When we arrived at his house, Vincent wasn't there at first. He was at a teenage party at Leo's house ... Leo, I hate him even more. My father went off to mingle Page 131 with his friends, so I ended up just sitting on a couch sipping wine ... just like I thought.

And then I had to listen to Vincent's horrible bitch of a mother tell everyone how beautiful Vincent's girlfriend is. I didn't know he had a girlfriend, though from examining his facebook I knew that he had lots of female friends. This news really blew me over the edge. I had to keep going to the bathroom to calm my fuming rage. After that I resolved to get very drunk. I just didn't care anymore, I felt so crushed and defeated. How can Vincent, who is four years younger than me, have a girlfriend and I don't? How can he surpass me in life so easily?! What do girls see in this asshole that they don't see in me?! [three canceled words] I hate him so much ...

I'll be staying at my mother's house for another week before I go back to Santa Barbara. This is it. This new semester that I'll be starting is my last chance to have a great college life ... to make friends, to have sex with girls, to enjoy life as other people my age do! If this semester turns out like the last Page 132 one, and I end up dropping my classes, then I won't be able to finish community college by the summer of 2013, which is when my mother will stop paying me, and I won't be able to get into a university by then, which will lead to my father cutting off his support as well. It would be the end of me. This truly is my last chance.

I am very scared. In all likelihood, society won't be any nicer to me this year than it was last year. But I have to tackle it all the same. I have to! I must do everything I can to get what I want. This is a matter of life and death, and I will prevail!

Yesterday I [one canceled word] met up with Philip and Addison. I went to [two canceled words] Philip's house first, and then we all went in my car to hang out in West Hollywood. It was an interesting experience.

We first went on a nice hike in the Hollywood Hills and reached the Hollywood sign. Fantastic view! I got some [one canceled word] good pictures! After that we went to the Beverly Center and walked around a bit. I was wearing my new Hugo Boss shirt, so I felt a bit more confident walking around in the mall. And then Page 133 we went to the Getty Museum and made it there just before closing time. It was at the Getty Museum where Philip made a comment that pretty much ruined my night. He told Addison that a few girls checked him out at the mall. This made me very jealous. I asked Philip if he saw any girls checking me out, and he said no, he didn't see any. I was in so much shock. I asked him why he had to be so mean, and he told me he was just being "honest". I was devastated! How could girls check out Addison and not ME? I was in my best shirt, a shirt that cost me $150 dollars ... I was so devastated. How was this possible?! I'm better looking than Addison! That motherfucker. I couldn't take it anymore and I had to be alone after that, so I walked away from them and found a dark, quiet spot outside the museum, where I started to cry.

I cried for a while, and then I walked to a balcony overlooking the city, thinking about the world and my place in it. The view from the Getty Museum was magnificent, especially at night ... all the lights of the city was [sic] spread out before me. Seeing it with Page 134 tear-blurred eyes made it so surreal ...

When the museum closed I met Philip and Addison on the way out. I tried to hide my emotions, but I was bitter and depressed for the rest of the night. We later had dinner at a restaurant on Sunset boulevard, and then cruised around Hollywood for a bit. [one canceled word] I hate Hollywood at night ... lots of young people walking about and lots of young couples. It reminds me of Isla Vista, and I will be going back there in a few days. The thought leaves a bitter taste in my mouth. When I arrived home, I couldn't help [one canceled word] breaking down and crying some more [sic]. I was so emotional.

Well, here I am. Back in Santa Barbara. I haven't started school yet, and I feel very anticipated [sic] about this new semester. I've registered for six classes! I have to make up for dropping two last year.

I am very afraid. What if it all goes wrong and I end up dropping these classes? What then? It will all be over and I know it. Ever since I hit puberty my life has been an unnatural life of frustration and stifled sexual desire. Society has treated me so cruelly for [one canceled word] so many

Page 135 years. My move to Santa Barbara is my attempt to start anew, to give the world a chance. I thought I would finally be able to have what I've craved for: acceptance, love, sex. So far I've only experienced failure and more rejection. This new semester is my last hope.

1/18/2012

I am sitting in my room, alone. It is so dark and so lonely. I haven't started college yet, it doesn't seem to begin until the 23rd. I haven't spoken to anyone for a week, and I'm feeling very sad, and very angry. I've been thinking a lot about my life and my place in the world. My life is a great battle and a great struggle against those who want to oppress me. Other young people look at me and see someone who is different. They have cast me out and deemed me unworthy to fit in with them. They would have me die alone and unwanted while they enjoy their happy lives. It angers me so much when I think about how lonely I've been for so long. Alone, alone, alone ... This cannot go on. Time has gone by so fast, and I keep remaining in this position of failure. I want to prove to them that I am worthy, that I'm better than they are!

I can't take this anymore. My desire for sex is torture. Ever since puberty I've fantasized about having sex, and because girls deny me sex, I've had to live this torturous existence for years! The more I remain a virgin, the more I desperately desire it, and the worse my life gets.

I live such an unnatural existence. As a male I'm supposed to have sex with females, to mate with them and make love to them in pleasurable bliss. But no ... not me ... girls don't want to have sex with me. They consider me inferior and unworthy of even their attention! Girls my age have never paid any attention to me my whole life! How can I consider myself a human when the females of my species don't want to mate with me? What am I then? And what is my purpose?? How can they do this to me? I didn't do anything to deserve this ostracization from humanity. It breaks my heart to know how cruel and evil the world can be. It fills me with so much anger and hatred.

I went through puberty when I was 14 years old, and I was so overwhelmed with sexual desire. My whole life, my Page 137 whole world, changed that year. I was so overwhelmed with the concept of sex that it scared me deeply, and girls scared me aswell [sic]. They made me so nervous. I thought I would never have sex ... and sadly I was right. When I was 17 this fact fully dawned on me, and I realized how brutally cruel the world really is. That I would have these desires for sex and love but [be] unable to satisfy them because of humanity's rejection and disdain. 17 was the age when I started feeling extreme anger and hatred towards girls and the guys who get them, who take from me! And my hatred for girls is completely justified. It's despicable how cruel and malevolent they've treated me, especially since my desire is to have sex with girls and make them feel good! They deserve to be punished for this, and that has been my goal for so long. Revenge. I never forget the wrongs people have dealt to me.

The thing is, I don't want to believe that the world is like this! I want to believe that there is hope for good in the world ... that it is possible for me to get the happy life I want where girls are attracted to me and I can

[Leaves apparently removed; the following leaves are mangled and torn away from the spine]

4/21/2012

I am feeling very depressed. I'm at the end of all hope. It's almost been a month since that traumatic day ... The day I lost the Lottery jackpot that I was meant to win. I was going to be the record-breaking Lottery winner of 656 million! I still can't come to terms with the fact that I didn't win. I should not be in this position right now! If I had won, then I would probably be driving one of my dream cars at this very instant, looking for a new mansion to buy. I would probably even have a girlfriend by now. That is how my life should be. Not this. Not this depression and suffering and loneliness. I can't stand looking at my cramped, lonely apartment room. I feel like it's suffocating me. I feel so lonely and depressed that it's hard to breathe. It is so overwhelming. It's as if I'm trapped with no way out. What happens now?

There is no hope for me, is there? I dropped all of my college classes, something I feared I would do. I just didn't want to suffer another day at that horrible college, with all those beautiful young couples walking around and looking down on me as if I'm inferior to them. I dropped my classes with the conviction that I would return to college as a rich guy who could get all the girls ... I thought I had a chance to become rich very quickly. I thought I would win the Lottery. It was meant to be! I can't believe I didn't win! This is so shattering. What do I do now?

4/23/2012

I just watched a new episode of Game of Thrones season 2, my favorite T.V. show. It just started airing at the beginning of this month. With the horrible way my life is turning out lately, I can at least get a somewhat small sense of enjoyment from watching this show. Season 2 is very exciting, and I think it adapts the books very well.

5/7/2012

I feel so lifeless. I have nothing to hope for anymore. How can I ever become rich at a young age? That is my purpose in life. It's the only way I will ever experience sex

Page 140 and love. But I lost the Lottery. What other way is there? That jackpot was meant to be MINE! For the past few days I've felt so weak and defeated. This loneliness is killing me. Life is torture.

I hate my flatmate Spencer so much. Ever since he was assigned as my flatmate he has been there to witness all of my failure and shame. We live in the same apartment unit, so it's not like I can hide my failure. It shows. The fact that I've never brought a girl into my room is evidence enough that I'm a lonely virgin. The pain that I feel because of my lonely virgin status is terrible enough, and the fact that this Spencer is around to witness it all and judge me just makes everything worse.

And lately he's been bringing this girl into his room. It started a couple of months ago. When I first heard a female voice coming from inside his room, I was overcome with shock and indignation. Spencer is a short, chubby, and ugly little man. How in the world can this ugly pig get a girl into his room, and yet I

Page 141 can't? How can he accomplish it before me?! What the fuck is wrong with this world?

When I finally got a glimpse of the girl he was with, I saw that she was ugly and plain looking, and a wave of relief swept over me. There is no way I would be attracted to this girl Spencer was with, and yet Spencer gave me the most smug look after I saw her. I can't believe this slob has the nerve to be cocky about it. He probably thinks I'm jealous of him because he brought a girl over and I haven't yet. A few days ago I confronted him about this, telling him that his girl looks like an ugly whore and so he has no right to act cocky. That made him quite angry and offended, to my satisfaction. How dare this fat little rodent act smug towards ME, just because he brings a trashy whore to his room! How dare he. And then he starts telling me that I'm a "weirdo" and a "lunatic", hah! A fat little lowlife is calling ME names? I am superior to him in all ways.

Today I went on a lonely, dismal stroll through Isla Vista. It's been a while since I've done this, and today was no different than my other walks through this cruel and brutal town. It filled me with despair. I saw groups of young, attractive college students walking together. Oh, I can only imagine how great life would be if I could be among them. To be accepted! But there I was, walking alone, as always. A few girls walked past me, but they looked at me as if I was a mouse, unworthy of breathing the same air as them. They see me as an unworthy and inferior man, and they throw themselves at the men who they think are the "alpha males", the jocks and frat boys. I am an outcast when I walk around here, miserable and alone. It is so terrifying to be at the bottom of the social ladder. When everyone around me treats me like an inferior form of life, I feel so small and vulnerable. The world is so cruel. What's the point of living if I have to suffer this? My life has been so meaningless.

I now realize that I can never fit in with other young people while I'm in my current position. All these college kids think they are better than me, and thus they would never accept me to be among them. The truth is, I am the one who is better than them. When I first moved to Santa Barbara, I thought I could finally live the life that other young people live. I thought I could finally have sex and go to parties and have fun. I was wrong. I am different from other people my age. They can see that I'm different, and so they treat me with cruelty and disdain. I can't be one of them ... but I CAN rise above them! I am better than they are! I am more mature, more intelligent. I am special. I've always known this. I shouldn't be putting myself at the mercy of these cruel people by trying to fit in with them. I was completely at their mercy ... the entire time I've lived in Santa Barbara. All I got was rejection and ostracization.

Instead of begging to join them, I should be working to rise above them! I HATE these people for the way they've treated me. Once I rise to a higher position in life through gaining power and wealth, I can show them all how superior I am! That will be the ultimate revenge, and it will be so sweet.

6/22/2012

I have decided to quit my summer classes. I signed up for two of them, and I attended them [one canceled word] for two days before realizing that there really is no point to this anymore. I refuse to go to these classes, sit there for hours listening to these boring lectures, and spend so much time completing mundane homework assignments when NOTHING comes out of it. And that's not even the worst part. Every time I go to my college I have to watch all these other males having the time of their lives while I suffer in misery and loneliness. I see them ... I see them enjoying the company of girls. I see guys walking arm in arm with their hot girlfriends, laughing together and kissing. I see guys chatting up hot girls and exchanging phone numbers with them. They live such blissful lives of pleasure and fun while I have to suffer every single day. It's not fair! I should be the one with the girls! I deserve it more than them! I HATE THEM!

How can I keep going on like this? This is a never-ending cycle of torture for me. I will NOT go on like this. I dropped my classes in the spring because I knew it was hopeless to keep trying this way. I formed the absolute goal that I will become wealthy at a young age, as fast as possible, and then return to college in triumph as a superior rich man who can get all the girls. This is my PURPOSE in life ... to become wealthy and rise above everyone I hate, everyone who mistreated me, ridiculed me, rejected me. To make them envy me just as I [one canceled word] envy them. I will not backtrack from this goal. I will not give up. My failure to win the MegaMillions Jackpot in March cannot mean the end of all possibility to become rich while I'm young. There has to be a way!

6/24/2012

Becoming wealthy is my only hope to get the life I desire, but how will I do it? I've already come to the conclusion that writing an epic fiction story won't make me rich fast enough, and that's if I write a story that will be made into a movie. Very small chance of that happening. It would take many years to acquire wealth with that plan. I can't wait that long. Sexual starvation is torture. I don't want to wait 5 years until I can lose my virginity. How will I do it? The prospect is so daunting. It seems the only way is if I win the Lottery.

I can't help but wonder, with a lot of dread, what would happen if I fail to become successful and rich. What if it will never happen? If I can never become wealthy, then I will be a lonely virgin forever. Girls won't see the value in me unless I have lots of money. If I fail to acquire this vast amount of money I need to attract girls, then I will forever be an undesirable. Forever loathed. NO! Just [one canceled word] imagining such a dark future fills me with despair. I would rather die than live like this any longer. Wealth is my only way out. Without that, then I having [sic] nothing to live for. Nothing to live for but revenge. If I fail to become wealthy, I will have my revenge in any other way possible, no matter the cost.

This makes me think about a phrase I came up with recently: If I cannot join them, I will rise above them. If I cannot rise above them, I will destroy them.

7/10/2012

I've been reading this book called "The Power of Your Subconscious Mind" and I find it to be very similar to "The Secret". It gives a more in depth view of the law of attraction. I gave up on believing in this concept over a year ago, but this book is giving me renewed hope. What if such a power exists? What if I can harness this universal power to change my fate with my mind? And if it does exist, who better than I, Elliot Rodger, to be the one to utilize it! I am special. My mind is more evolved than other people's. It doesn't hurt to try. I will study the concepts of this book more and meditate on it.

I turned 21 over a week ago. This is a very dismal and ominous period of my life. I am getting older and older, and time is running short. I am a 21 year old virgin! I've never experienced the pleasures of having sex with a girl. The wealth I will attain in the future is my only way of making up for that. I am determined to acquire my wealth very soon. I deserve it more than anyone else. The only way of gaining this wealth right now is through winning the MegaMillions Lottery ... It is my destiny. I am so certain of it! I was born to be wealthy. I am meant to win the Lottery. It is the perfect happy conclusion to all of the suffering and mistreatment I've had to experience in my life. I believe I will win. Once the Jackpot rises above 100 million, I will buy a ticket and that ticket will be the winning ticket. I trust that the universe will align itself to my firm belief. I am powerful!

Right now I can only dream, only fantasize. This fantasizing only fuels my belief. It's what keeps me motivated and hopeful every day. I have something to live for now. Soon ... soon the life I

Page 149 want will come to be. It only makes sense. It's only fair. I can live with my virginity and sexual starvation just a little bit longer, knowing that once I win the Lottery, I will be able to satisfy it all I want. Girls will finally see my worth! They will be all over me. I can't wait!

8/7/2012

Lately I've been going on long walks by myself around Girsh Park, near Isla Vista. I would usually go during the time the sun sets, when there are not so many people around. As I walk, I would think about my future and my hopes and dreams. It is a very soothing experience, and it helps me strengthen my belief that I am destined to win the Mega-Millions Lottery and become a young multi-millionaire. I feel more and more content with life as I think about this.

I feel a great surge of excitement when I imagine how happy and perfect my life will be once I've won the MegaMillions Jackpot. I will be able to fully indulge in everything I'm passionate about: exotic cars, luxurious mansions, expensive clothes, and of course

Page 150 sex with beautiful girls. I will drive a Maserati and a Lamborghini, and when girls see me in those cars they will all want to date me. They will finally see me as the supreme man that I'm meant to be. When I purchase a huge, beautiful mansion and take girls to it, they will be in love. I just know it!

Once this all comes to fruition, I will finally lose my virginity. I will be able to have sex! SEX SEX SEX!!! No more lonely nights of masturbating ... I will be able to experience the real thing, just as other men do, curse them. I crave for sex. I want to hold a beautiful girl's naked body against mine and feel her smooth sexy skin. I want to lick her all over and make passionate love to her. I want to make her moan with delight as she orgasms, looking at me with love and lust in her eyes. I want to know what it feels like to fall asleep with a girl cuddled up to me at night. I WANT!

I spend all of my time meditating now, visualizing what my life will be like once I've won. I do feel very impatient, though my impatience will only

Page 151 make my victory much more satisfying. I only have to wait a little while longer. My money is coming. I am so certain of it. The Jackpot is slowly rising, and in about a month's time it should be at over 100 million. My victory is only a month away!

My desire for sex is overwhelming. Every time I go out I see beautiful girls everywhere, and the sight of them makes my whole body tingle. Sometimes I even get an erection when I look at them, and I can't control it. I hunger! It is so torturous to not be able to satisfy my urges. The only way to deal with it is to think that when I am rich, which I will be soon, I can have all the sex I want.

8/20/2012

My hatred for my flatmate Spencer has intensified. This ugly idiot thinks he's better than me because I've never brought a girl to my room. For this entire year that I've shared an apartment unit with him, he has been making judgements [sic] about me as

Page 152 I've suffered through loneliness and rejection. I can hide how pathetic my life has been from others, but I can't from him. He knows. That is why I hate him. And now the lease on this apartment is about to end, and I'll never see him again. I'll be forever imprinted in his mind as the weird loner who can't get a girlfriend. [one canceled word] It's too late to prove my superiority to him. It's infuriating! I hope he catches a horrible disease and dies a painful death. Perhaps when I'm rich I can track him down and gloat to him about how awesome my life has become. Yes ... that's what I will do. He will envy me then.

The MegaMillions Jackpot is growing. I know I'm going to win soon. It make[s] perfect sense that I will win this. I must remain faithful. I must truly believe that I will win. That is the key to activating this power.

Despite my heightened faith that I will be the winner, I've been feeling this lingering anxiety. It's very worrying. My greatest fear often tugs at the back of my mind ... what if this power doesn't

Page 153 exist? What if I don't win? My whole life will be shattered. I cannot think that ... I have to win. It's meant to be! It's my supreme purpose in life to be a young multi-millionaire and make all my enemies envy me. I can't have doubt. I must conquer my fear.

9/8/2012

I am now living in a new apartment unit. After my lease on the old apartment ended, I transferred to a unit in the main complex of Capri Apartments. Their main complex is located in the center of Isla Vista, closer to where all the parties happen. Not like that matters anymore. Soon I will be driving home to my mother's house with my winning Lottery ticket. When I return to Isla Vista, it will be in a brand new exotic car.

[Rest of page blank]

12/1/2012

My life is over ...

I cannot begin to describe the level of rage and despair I'm in right now. I LOST! I built all of my hopes up, AGAIN, and it has been completely and mercilessly shattered.

Back in September, I lost the Megamillions Jackpot that I so surely thought I was destined to win. That defeat put me into the worst depression of my life. I was so depressed I couldn't even write in my diary. I just didn't have the motivation. But I still clung to the hope that the Megamillions Jackpot would rise high again. It's all I have to hope for. Being rich is the ONLY way I can attract the girls I want, and winning the Lottery is the ONLY way I can become rich at my age. I have no talent as a singer or actor or anything like that. The Lottery is the only way ... And so I clung to hope.

In the last couple of months, the Megamillions never rose that high, to my utter dismay. I grew impatient and then I saw on the news that Page 155 the POWERBALL Jackpot is above 500 million! But California doesn't have the Powerball Lottery ... The only way for me to get tickets is to drive all the way to Arizona.

When I found out about this Jackpot, there was only a day left until the drawing. I would have to drive to Arizona right then and there in order to make it in time.

I immediately thought about a young couple I saw earlier in the day. They were walking in Isla Vista, holding hands and kissing. When they kissed, the guy placed his hands on his girlfriend's ass. The sight filled me with envy and anguish. When I got home I felt dizzy. That guy is living the life. His life is heaven. The only way I can have a girlfriend like that ... to have that heavenly experience ... is to become very rich. I decided that I HAD to win that Powerball Jackpot. I jumped into my car and took off for Arizona at 1:00 in the morning.

This was destiny. It was a six-hour journey, and I thought about the life I am meant to Page 156 live as I drove with determination. I spent 100 dollars on fuel and 100 dollars on tickets. I was so sure I would win! After the drawing, I was so nervous to check the results that I waited until today. Today I checked the results that would decide my fate, AND I LOST!!! How dare the world do this to me! Everything has been shattered. All my hopes, all my dreams, SHATTERED. How can this be? I keep asking myself that. How can this be happening to me? My life is over. Without this victory, I have nothing to live for, nothing to hope for.

After all the suffering, rejection, and injustice I've had to face in my life, and the long, emotional journey I just took to Arizona, I truly believed I would finally be victorious. I thought I would be rich and finally prove my worth to the world. I thought I could finally have a girlfriend and have sex. As I drove to Arizona, I kept visualizing and dreaming about the heavenly life I would live after my big Lottery win. I pictured the Page 157 beautiful blonde-haired girlfriend I would have, and even the children we would have together. It is the life I am meant to have, and it has been taken away from me today. Everything has been shattered and destroyed. I didn't win. Now I have to continue living my miserable, lonely, sex-deprived life.

12/2/2012

Today I drove to Girsh Park in Goleta, still in disbelief about what just happened. I walked around in the grass for an hour, thinking about my place in the world. I remember walking in this same park a few months ago, with high hopes that I would be rich by now. Now I have nothing to hope for. I can't believe I drove all the way to Arizona for Powerball tickets, only to lose. This can't be! I was meant to win that! It would have been the perfect culmination of my tragic life.

What do I do now? I've been asking myself that all day long. Am I doomed to suffer this horrible, lonely life forever? I am sick and

Page 158 tired of this. What is the point to my life, if I'm just going to suffer rejection, humiliation, and loneliness? Women hate me. They reject me. They don't see any value in me. I'll never have a girlfriend, I'll never have children, I'll never have love. Without any hope of becoming rich, no girl will ever see any value in me. No girl ever has before. It's hopeless. I'm destined to be lonely and unwanted forever, forced to watch other men enjoy women. All because women don't fancy me, even though I'm a nice and beautiful gentleman. I deserve women more than any other man does, and yet women give themselves to other men, but not me. Evil bitches. How dare they treat me this way!

If I can never have the life I want, then the only thing for me to live for is revenge. I will not accept that I have to continue living this lonely life, rejected by women. I will not sit by and let them treat me this way. All women, and the whole world for that matter, must be punished for the injustices I've had to suffer throughout my life.

12/17/2012

I'm going to England again. My mother has been planning a second trip to England for a while now, and she's been talking about it for the last couple of months. I never planned on going along ... But recently she told me that we will be traveling on Virgin Atlantic Upper Class. A first class trip to England? I can't deny that, no matter how lonely and bored I will be when I get there. Hell, I'm lonely and bored everywhere I go anyway ... it's better to endure it in luxury. After the horrific way my life has turned out recently, I need a way to help ease the pain and relax. I've agreed to go along with my mother and sister to England.

12/26/2012

I'm writing from my hotel in England right now. I took my diary with me, just in case I feel like writing as I dwell around in my hotel room, which I find to be very comfortable and luxurious, by the way. I'm loving the pork sausage they serve for breakfast. Sitting in my quiet hotel room in England, far away from my life in America, makes me feel a temporary sensation of peace and escape. It eases my mind, and I can forget about my hellish circumstances for just this short period of time. This is a good time to meditate and contemplate. I will relish in this peace.

The journey here was fabulous. [one canceled word] Traveling on Upper Class made me feel prestigious and satisfied. In fact, I've never felt so satisfied in my life ... well, at least I haven't since my life was ruined after puberty. This was the third time in my life that I've traveled on Upper Class. The last two times were with father and Soumaya, back when father was rich. Though I was too little to fully appreciate it back then. For this trip, I tried to enjoy every second of it. I had a lot of wine and champagne [sic], getting quite drunk in the process. I watched the new Ice Age movie and had a nice sleep on my opulent First Class bed-seat. I look forward to experiencing it again on the trip home, but I dread actually getting there.

I can't believe it's already been a year since my last trip to England. And here I am once again. This year went by in a blur, and I spent most of it wallowing in my loneliness. It was a year of misery and darkness, with the only light being my hope that I can find a way to become rich so I can live the life I want.

As I sit here in my hotel room in England, the country of my birth, I think about everything that has transpired in my life to lead me up to this point. What is in store for me in the future? Is there any hope now? What can I do? How can I escape this dark path? Money is the only way I can be attractive to girls. Without that, there is nothing to live for. And when I say money, I mean millions ... The only way I can get a hot girl to go on a date with me is if I drive a supercar and live in a mansion. Those stuck-up bitches won't even notice me otherwise.

12/28/2012

I am spending this entire vacation sitting in my hotel room or at my grandma's house, brooding. I refuse to go out with my family. There's no point to it. On the last trip, I did go out with them, and I saw lots of couples ... especially when we toured around London. It saddened me that I didn't have a girlfriend to experience it with me.

Oh, how lovely would it be to have a girlfriend to take on such a vacation! To share this amazing hotel room with me, to walk around London with me and go sight seeing, to introduce her to my [one canceled word] grandma's [sic] and make them proud! To make love to her on this opulent hotel bed ... If only! That's how it should be. But no, .. girls hate me. They aren't attracted to me. No girl wants to be my girlfriend.

And so here I sit, alone and unwanted, thinking about how my life should have turned out. Everything in my life has turned out to be so twisted and wrong. It's truly amazing how I've been able to endure such torment for so long.

1/5/2013

New Year's Day has passed. It's now 2013. How incredible. My time is ebbing away. The last 8 years of my youth has been wasted away, all because girls don't find me attractive. I will never get back those 8 years. I haven't been allowed to truly live as other men do. The pleasures of sex have been denied [one canceled word] to me. How will I ever make up for this? It's 2013 already!

Time keeps passing on, and my life keeps staying miserable and unsatisfying. I can't stand this any longer. There has to be hope. I can't go on living without hope.

1/20/2013

I'm back in Santa Barbara once again. It was a long break, but here I am. The place that was meant to bring me opportunities to change my life for the better, only to enlighten me more on how cruel and [two canceled words] brutal the world is. Santa Barbara, a place of beauty and romance where I thought I could have a fresh start to live the life I want.

Page 164

And yet, [one canceled word] so far it's only been a place where I've suffered even more loneliness and rejection. I'm suffering in an environment where everyone else is experiencing pleasure and fun. The pleasure and fun that I could have had here has been denied to me, because no one wants to be my friend, no girls want to be my girlfriend, no girls want to have sex with me. They give their sex and affection to all those undeserving rowdy obnoxious boys, but not to me, leaving me to wallow in my loneliness and unworthiness. It's an absolute injustice! An insult that cannot go unpunished! If I can't have what I desire, then the only thing to live for is to punish those who denied it to me.

1/24/2013

I'm not sure how to go about doing this anymore. The loneliness is drai[ni]ng my life away. No one wants me. No one cares about me. I only signed up for online classes this year. I just can't walk into SBCC anymore, all those good-looking couples walking around makes me too

Page 165 envious. And yet I don't know how the hell I'll even find the incentive to do these use-less online courses. I don't see the point anymore. How can I spend my college life in such a miserable state of loneliness and isolation? This is so unnatural and unhealthy. I should be out there, among other people my age, enjoying life and having sex with hot girls. But I can't, because no one wants me. I hate humanity!

Every time I go outside I have to see what I'm missing, especially in this college town of Isla Vista. There are beautiful blonde girls everywhere! It's unbearable. They strut around in their short-shorts, showing off their sexy, tanned legs. Every day I have to see what I can't have, and it's torture. Torture! Their very existence mocks me. Life is such a cruel joke. I can't take it anymore. And to see these girls walking around with guys who don't deserve them ... That is the ultimate insult. I DESERVE THEM!!! I deserve them so

Page 166 much more than those depraved, obnoxious jocks I always see them walk with. I am a supreme gentleman, and yet girls think I am scum. There must be something mentally wrong with them. They are stupid. It's as if they are mentally ill. Girls would have to be mentally ill if they are choosing those stupid guys over me! The way their brains are wired ... they are like animals. Cruel, barbaric animals! They should be punished.

Weekends have always been the worst for me here. Other young people look forward to the weekends because they get to party with all of their friends and have sex with their girlfriends. I don't have any friends to party with nor girlfriends to have sex with. On weekends, I have to sit alone in my room, suffering from the knowledge that everyone else is out there having fun. I always dread the weekends because of this. The worst part of it is that here in Isla Vista I have to listen to them all partying! I can hear parties full of guys and girls shouting and having a good time.

Page 167 And I just know that some of those guys will be having sex with hot girls on that very night, while I have to sleep all alone and unwanted. HOW DARE THEY! How dare they have so much fun while I suffer! They all think they are better than me. They never invite me to join in on their fun. They deem me unworthy of it. I hate them all so much.

1/27/2013

Having to watch good looking couples walking around in Isla Vista is the worst experience in the world. I see them everywhere. Horrible, tall jocks walking around with their [one word canceled] hot blonde girlfriends. I feel like such a mouse when I see this. They make me feel so inferior. They get to live their heavenly, pleasure-filled lives while I have to watch them with envy. Those girls would never go for me. They would only treat me like scum. I feel like I'm at the bottom of the food chain. It's the worst feeling in the world. There's nothing I can DO about it. It's all so hopeless. I feel so trapped with no way out! I'm in tears right now.

2/6/2013

I drove to Arizona again. I know it sounds crazy, but I just had to do it. I was feeling so hopeless and desperate. I need something to live for. I NEED HOPE! A few days ago I checked the Powerball and saw that the jackpot had risen high again, so I immediately got in my car and made the long drive to get a ticket, fueled by my burning desire for a better life. I made the journey, there and back, in the span of one day. This time, I bought a ticket that lasts for many consecutive drawings. So far, I haven't won yet, but I'm hoping that this ticket will be [one canceled word] THE ONE. I needed this. I just couldn't go on anymore without hope. To be wealthy is the only way I can live a satisfying life, and I must become wealthy NOW!

2/7/2013

I keep fantasizing about being wealthy; the kinds of things I will do, the pleasures I will have. I picture a whole life for myself. Once I am wealthy, girls will finally see me as a worthy boyfriend. I will be able to attract the girl of my dreams. I just know it! I NEED to win this Lottery. How else would I get rich? I need money to make money. If there is any justice in this world, I WILL win this. I deserve it more than anyone else. Being a person of wealth is what I am meant to be. Having great wealth, and the luxurious life it would provide for me forever, is the ONLY way to make up for the lonely and miserable life I've been forced to suffer. It's the only way I will ever be satisfied. If there's no way for me to become wealthy, then I don't want to live in this world anymore. I refuse to remain at the bottom of the social ladder.

Rising to wealth will also be the perfect way to have revenge on everyone who has insulted and rejected me, because I will be rising above them all. I can look down upon them from above, just like they did to me. I can be satisfied with that. Ah... To be satisfied with my life... That is what I long for. Once I am satisfied with my life, I will finally be at peace, and I can enjoy life to its fullest, just like I did when I was a child with nothing to worry about. Oh, how I miss those days!

I haven't been happy for a long time, and it has caused me to die a little inside. When I think about a time, far into my past, when I actually was happy, I am filled with longing. I want my life back!

I went to Starbucks earlier, and while I was there I saw a blonde girl who was so beautiful I just had to leave and sulk to myself. The feelings of desire were too strong to handle. I couldn't believe how such a beautiful girl exists. She had cascading blonde hair; a tall, thin, sexy body; and smooth, tanned skin. She was wearing short-shorts that revealed her perfect long legs. Her face was so beautiful that I just wanted to die. That is the kind of girl who should be my girlfriend. I don't want to think about the kinds of guys who have had the heavenly opportunity to make love to her. Just thinking about that will fill me with anguish. Hell, just by looking at such a blonde beauty fills me with anguish. I feel unworthy of her, and it's true, Page 171 at the moment. As I am right now, I am invisible to her. She would deem me unworthy even to speak to. But if I become [one canceled word] wealthy, I may have a chance. I'll finally be worthy. Wealth is the only way. This is a life and death struggle.

I am still here. I am still languishing in this bleak little room of mine, in the town of Isla Vista, with nothing to live for. I am still an unwanted virgin who is deemed as worthless by the female gender. I am STILL in the same damnable place!

I drove to Arizona two more times last month to buy Powerball tickets. That makes a total of four desperate trips to Arizona in an attempt to become a millionaire. That is insane ... But I had to. Drastic circumstances require drastic measures. Becoming a millionaire is my ONLY way out of this lonely life of celibacy, and winning the Lottery is the ONLY way I can become a millionaire at my age. It was my only hope, and that hope has once again been

I should have only had to make ONE trip, and that trip should have been the one where I bought the winning ticket. But the ticket DIDN'T WIN! I kept losing and losing, so I kept going back. I have been losing at everything all my life. Winning this would have made up it. It would have made up for EVERYTHING!!! But I didn't win ...

The Powerball Lottery is coming to California soon, so I no longer have to drive to Arizona for it. But does that even matter anymore? I'm never going to win, am I? For the last year, I have tricked myself countless times into believing I would win, just so I could have a sense of hope, a sense of knowing that there is a possible way out of my misery in the future. Enough is enough. I can't waste any more time and energy. There is no way out. It is a painful and torturous fact that I must accept. Humanity has condemned me to suffer this loneliness and misery forever. [one canceled word] Knowing this, the only thing I can now do is strike back. Revenge is all I have to live for.

It is so unfair that I have to suffer this virginity every single day while other guys my age get to have sex with girls. For so long I've believed that I have to be a millionaire in order to attract the girls I desire, and it's true, obviously, because no girls are going for me right now. But WHY? Why must it be this way? Why can't girls see the worth in me as a person? I deeply envy and hate all of those guys who are able to attract girls with ease, without having to buy them. They should all be punished for being able to live such pleasurable lives while I suffer. But do you know who deserves to be punished even more? The girls themselves. It's all girl's [sic] fault. They choose to be with those other boys instead of me. I am a magnificent gentleman, and I deserve their love, but they deny it to me! That is a crime and it must be punished! I am a virgin because girls deny me sex. They treat me like scum. They think I'm not good enough. How dare they! I will punish them!

[The following two leaves are torn; missing text is conjectured or indicated with ellipses.]

Every single couple I see fills me with rage. I cannot go out without seeing a young couple walking arm in arm together. I hate all women for denying me such an experience. No girl wants to be my girlfriend. I can't go on living this way. This is no way to live. I realized this long ago! I tried to find a solace by hoping I could become wealthy enough to attract girls, but now it seems as if that's impossible. I will NOT spend my life suffering [as] a lonely virgin while other men [get] to enjoy the pleasures of sex [and] love. No, no, NO!

I have been insulted and rejected [too] many times, and I have had [enoug]h! If I have nothing to live [for in] the future, then all I have [now is] the prospect of getting revenge [...] make humanity suffer the pain [and ago]ny that everyone has caused [me in m]y life. Yesterday I met up with Philip and Addison. I haven't seen them for over a year. It was nice to catch up with them ... and to actually do something social for a change. The loneliness I experience in Santa Barbara is so stifling, which is why I've been visiting home a lot lately.

I went to Philip's house to meet them. Going to that place always brings back memories of my childhood. Philip has been my friend since elementary school, and I played at his house a lot as a kid. When I entered his home, I took a moment to wal[k] around and reminisce. I said hell[o] to Philip's mother, Kathy, who [one canceled word] complimented my looks, saying that I looked "handsome". When we drove through Santa Monica, I became increasingly enraged at all of the hot young couples I saw walking in the streets, though I tried to hide my rage from Philip and Addison. It was too much, those couples are a reminder of how insignificant my life is. Those men were living the life, walking through the streets of Santa Monica with their hot blonde girlfriends. I wanted to kill them, and I would [i]f I could. I wanted to run [t]hem over with the SUV. That would [be] so sweet, to get revenge in such [a] fashion. Perhaps I will one day. [It] may come to that. They starved me of sex. They starved me of a joyful life. They literally denied me my youth. I'm turning 22 in a few months. I've had to suffer this virginity for too long. I am getting old now, and I've lived a wasted, unsatisfying life. It's all women's fault. If only they were attracted to me ... the life I could have had ... That life never existed. It's too late now. I will never be able to look back on my past and feel satisfied about the happy memories I've had. There ar[e] no happy memories! At least not [...] the last eight years. 4/28/2013

Women are flawed. There is something extremely wrong with the way their brains are wired. Women are creatures who are incapable of thinking rationally. They are incapable of reason. They are completely controlled by their vile emotional and sexual impulses. They think like beasts. They ARE beasts. This is why they are sexually attracted to beast-like men rather than supreme intelligent gentlemen like myself.

If women continue to have the right to choose who they mate and [br]eed with, they will continue to [ma]te with degenerate men and produce stupid, degenerate offspring. This would only hinder the advancement of the human race. The evil and wickedness of women must be contained in order to ensure a decent and bright future for the generations to come. Women don't deserve any rights. They are vile, barbaric animals and they need to be treated as such. Women must be quarantined like the plague they are, so that they can no longer torture decent men like myself, and so that they can be used in a manner that actually benefits a civilized society.

This is the conclusion I have come to after having to endure a life of starvation, rejection, and torment at the hands of women. They have starved me of sex and love all my life, while they tantalize me everyday [sic] by walking around in their skimpy, revealing clothing. I have had enough of this injustice! They think they can [one canceled word] torture me [one canceled word] and get away with it. I will punish them all.

4/29/2013

I don't understand how women are so twisted, evil, and barbaric. I've only ever wanted to love them, but their foul behavior towards me has only earned my hatred. It is so tragic that it has to come to this. I would love women, if only they loved me. I want to have sex with them and make them feel good, but they never gave me the chance. They consider me unworthy of their love and affection. Women's rejection of me is a declaration of war. If it's war they want, then I will give them a war their stupid little minds will never forget. If they won't accept me as a lover, then I am their enemy. I will show them no mercy. They certainly didn't show me any mercy. It's only fair.

5/18/2013

I can't go out without seeing young couples everywhere. Even going grocery shopping is torture. I remain trapped in my room as much as I can because I hate having to show the world what a lonely virgin I am. When I went shopping at Trader Joe's the other day, I saw so many guys shopping with their girlfriends. And there I was, shopping alone. The world sees those guys with girlfriends as better than me because I'm all alone, without anyone. My loneliness shows the world that girls think I'm worthless. I've had to suffer this for so long. Every time I go out I am insulted by the sight of young couples walking together.

5/20/2013

I hate all women for not being attracted to me. I hate all women for depriving me of sex. I hate all women for depriving me of a happy, enjoyable youth. I wasted my whole youth in miserable loneliness, and it's all women's fault! They starved me of love and sex! They give it to other guys, but not me! It's not fair!

I don't know why women are so repulsed by me. I've done nothing wrong in my life. I am a magnificent, supreme gentleman. I am Elliot Rodger.

If I cannot have women, then I will destroy them. It's the only option for me now. I'm not going to just sit by and suffer this bleak loneliness while other males get to enjoy all of the beautiful women, just because beautiful women consider me unworthy of it. I AM WORTHY! How dare they consider me otherwise! I am powerful. I will destroy them all, and in doing so I will show them my true worth.

For a very long time, I have fantasized about exacting revenge on women and all of my enemies in the most devastating way possible. I have envisioned scenarios of how sweet and just it would be to kill every single young couple at my college, or in Isla Vista. I knew that I would have to plan something like this if I no longer have any hope for a happy life, if society continues to treat me like scum, if women continue to reject me . . . I would have no choice but to exact revenge. I gave everyone chance after chance to redeem themselves in my eyes, but the world has only continued to be cruel to me. If I can't join them, I will rise above them, and if I can't rise above them, then I will destroy them.

My hope that I could "join" them was shattered after I experienced all of that rejection and ostracization during my first year in Santa Barbara, and my hope that I could "rise above" them was shattered after I realized that there was no way I could become wealthy at a young age. The only thing I can do now is to destroy them. It's all I have to live for now. I will destroy them all.

The day that I will commit this glorious act will be called The Day of Retribution. I came up with this name a couple of years ago, when I first started fantasizing about it. On this Day of Retribution, I will exact my perfect and beautiful revenge on all of my enemies; on all of the popular kids for looking down on me and never accepting me; on all of the obnoxious, undeserving men who get to enjoy pleasurable sex lives with girls; and especially on all of the girls themselves for rejecting me, starving me of love and sex, and denying me a pleasurable youth. All of the suffering they have caused me, I will return to them one-thousand fold!

I have already purchased my weapons. Back in December of last year, it fully dawned on me that the possibility of having to carry out the Day of Retribution was very real, so I bought my first handgun, a Page 184 Glock 34 9mm semi-automatic pistol. In March, I bought my second handgun, a more efficient one called the Sig Sauer P226. Both of them were very expensive, and the magazine clips will be even more expensive since I'll have to buy a lot of them. Thankfully, I had been saving up money over the years just in case something drastic like this would have to happen. I didn't write about this before, because I was scared someone might find and read my diary. Since the Day of Retribution may be happening soon, perhaps even this year, I figure I'll write it down now.

I am now armed, and it makes me feel powerful. I am meant to be powerful. I will slaughter all of my enemies like the animals they are. I will be a god compared to them. It will be beautiful, glorious!

I have to decide if I should attack SBCC or Isla Vista. I have been rejected and humiliated at both places, but I can't destroy them both. Once I begin my Retribution, I will only have minutes before I am confronted by the damnable police, and then I'll have to kill myself to avoid capture.

Page 185 This is all happening so fast. I can't believe it has to resort to this. I can't believe I'm writing this! I'm starting to feel sick with anguish right now. Why do things have to be this way?

6/6/2013

I have concluded that the Day of Retribution will be some time during November of this year ... I haven't set a date for it yet. I have often thought about doing it in Isla Vista on Halloween of this year, since that is when a lot of parties will be happening at once ... and the streets will be crowded with my enemies. But there will be too many cops on Halloween. It's too risky.

This gives me about five months to plan and prepare. Five months can be a long time, if I make use of it. I'm thinking about buying a third handgun, just in case my other two get jammed.

I will destroy Isla Vista, and every single person in it. My choice has been made. The Day of Retribution

Page 186 will have to occur in Isla Vista, on a Friday or Saturday night. SBCC was a good choice ... there are lots of young couples walking around there ... but Isla Vista has more. The goal is to kill popular, attractive people, and Isla Vista is always flooded with them on weekend nights. Yes ... I will kill all of those popular, attractive, good looking people I envy so much. They think they are better than me. They think I'm unworthy of being one of them. On the Day of [one canceled word] Retribution, we shall see who is better. I will show them all that I, Elliot Rodger, am the superior one! All of those beautiful girls who laughed at me and rejected me ... They will be running in fear as I slay them left and right.

I have been doing a lot of thinking about how my life is turning out lately. It's so hard to believe that it has to resort to this. The world has given me no choice. I have been insulted and tortured too much! I will be 22 soon, and I'm still a virgin. I started desiring girls when I hit puberty at the Page 187 age of 14. That is eight years of sexual starvation. EIGHT YEARS of torture! Girls have never shown any attraction towards me. They starved me of love and sex. Not one girl in this whole world has ever wanted to be my girlfriend. Don't you see how unfair this is?

The entire female gender must have something mentally wrong with them, to be so evil and cruel to me by starving me of love and sex while they eagerly give it to other men. I deserve it too! In their barbaric stupidity, women don't see the worth in me. They are all mentally ill. They must all be punished, and I will be the one to punish them.

If I were a dictator with absolute power, I would take great pleasure and satisfaction in imprisoning every single female on earth and condemn them to starve to death. I would have a tower built for myself, where I can oversee the mega concentration camp and gleefully watch them starve and die. A few women would be spared for the sake of reproduction, of course, but they would be strictly quarantined in secret labs. That is the only way to make life on this Page 188 world fair; To eliminate the very thing that makes it unfair. If I can't have sex, no one will! Sex is unfair, because some men get to enjoy it while other men, like me, are starved of it. Sex should not exist! Women should not exist! If I can't have them, I will destroy them!

Of course, I realized long ago that the possibility of me ever rising to that level of power in my lifetime is very, very slim. It is virtually impossible, considering the state of the world today. Knowing this, I would have to just make do with the swift and devastating act of vengeance, the Day of Retribution. On that day, I will shake the very foundations of the world with the power of my burning hatred.

6/10/2013

After all of my most recent revelations, I've been feeling so trapped. It is so tragic how my life has fallen to such darkness. It is finally reaching its culmination, and I feel very overwhelmed and anxious. My life started out so bright and blissful. How could it all have come to this? The cruelty of the world made me the way I am. I have no choice but to go down Page 189 this dark path. There is no other way. I'm going to be 22 soon. It's too late for me now. I feel so trapped and lost.

6/12/2013

I want a way out. I wish there was a way out! Yesterday I went on a walk through the center of Isla Vista during the daytime. Since it's summer now, the town is more relaxed. I saw so many young people walking around in groups, enjoying their happy lives. I saw guys enjoying the company of attractive girls, sitting outside all of the cafe's [sic] and bars, talking and laughing with each other. I saw people living the life I've always wanted, but missed out on. It's all their fault, because they would never accept me among them. They think I'm weird and unworthy. That is why I have to get revenge on them.

Why do they get to live such pleasurable lives while I have to suffer? Why don't they accept me? Why won't girls just give me a chance to show my worth? Why does it have to be this way? I don't want it to turn out this way. I don't want it to Page 190 have to resort to such brutal, violent conflict. They give me no choice, you see. If only those popular kids accepted me among them, if only girls were attracted to me, then none of this would have to happen. I wouldn't even consider the Day of Retribution if just one pretty girl showed a hint of attraction towards me. It's all so sad and tragic. I really, really wish there was a way out.

When I see all those popular kids having fun around Isla Vista, some of the boys were worse-looking than me. How is it that they are accepted, and I'm not? I am beautiful and gorgeous. Girls should adore me! I don't know why they are so repulsed by me. This is why I think women are mentally ill. Here I am, the perfect, beautiful, supreme gentleman, and yet I have to suffer as a lonely outcast while watching obnoxious, undeserving boys enjoy all of the pretty girls. It's all so twisted and unfair!

6/16/2013

Today I celebrated Father's Day with my family at the Four Seasons in Westlake Village. There was an exquisite buffet set Page 191 up, and I took pleasure in eating as much luxury food as I could. The place was so beautiful, and the food was so delicious. I filled my plate three times and devoured it all, washing it down with a glass of Chardonnay. Experiences like this make me [one canceled word] realize that there are so many good things in this world to be enjoyed. I could truly enjoy life on this world, if only my circumstances were happier. If only I was satisfied with the way my life is going. If only girls were attracted to me, so I could feel a sense of self worth.

Perhaps I should give the world another chance. I still have many months left. I don't want to have to resort to violent, final retribution. I want a happy life!

8/5/2013

AAARGH!!! I sit here in defeat, and I am fuming with rage. My leg is broken, and I went through surgery a few days ago. Right now, I am sitting in a hotel in Woodland Hills, recovering from this brutal injury because my mother and sister went on vacation and my bitch of a stepmother won't let me stay at father's house. Oh well,

I have been defeated. It all happened so fast. I was so desperate to meet girls, so desperate to lose my virginity, that I walked into a party in Isla Vista while drunk. I was wearing my best clothes and my golden necklace. When I saw that some pretty girls at the party were talking to a group of guys who looked like obnoxious slobs, I became so enraged! NO GIRLS WERE PAYING ATTENTION TO ME!!! I went up to that group of obnoxious guys and, in my drunken rage, acted cocky and arrogant to them. I tried to insult them as harshly as possible, and they all attacked me! They pushed me off of the 10-foot ledge we were standing on, and I fell and broke my leg. Before I fell, I tried to push as many of them off as possible, but I failed in doing so. I also tried to push the girls off too. They deserve it for not paying attention to me!

After I broke my leg, I tried to stumble home, but I was attacked again by another group of obnoxious guys, and they stole my golden necklace!¹

Page 193 My grandmother gave me that necklace! How dare they! Damn them! Damn this whole world!

I sit here now, recovering from surgery in this hotel, my leg burning with pain. The pain in my leg is nothing compared to the agony burning in my heart. The worst part of that night wasn't breaking my leg or getting beaten up ... Oh no. The worst part of it was that no girl in Isla Vista showed any concern for me as I painfully stumbled home with a shattered leg and a bruised face and body. If girls were attracted to me, they would have helped me, they would have offered to walk me home and take care of me, they would have offered to sleep with me ... But no. No girls showed a hint of concern. No one cared a wit for me. I was all alone, just like I had been all my life.

That was the final straw. I actually gave everyone one last chance to accept me, and I was still treated with hostility. I went out to a party in Isla Vista to try and meet girls and possibly lose my virginity, and I ended up beaten, crippled, and humiliated.

Page 194 I will punish them all for this. I will punish them for EVERYTHING. I will make them all suffer! That was the final straw. I've had it with this world! I will have my revenge. The Day of Retribution will come!

My leg has fully healed now, and it feels a lot better to walk normally again. I haven't written in this diary for quite some time. I've been too preoccupied with things.

My mother has recently agreed to provide me with a much better car to drive in Santa Barbara. I now drive a BMW coupe. I always wanted this, ever since I found out that there was a car hierarchy and that some kids at my college drove around in nice cars like BMW's and Mercedes's. Now, I am one of them, and it certainly boosts my self-esteem every time I go out. I'm hoping that since I now have a cooler car than most kids at my college, I'd have a chance of attracting a girlfriend.

The setback I experienced from my broken leg and the depression it caused me meant that I had to abandon my soon. I can't believe how fast time has flown. Too fast. If I have to resort to my final solution of carrying out the Day of Retribution, it would have to be next Spring.

It's winter break right now, and I'm staying by myself at my mother's house while my mother, my sister, and my sister's boyfriend went on a vacation to England. I decided not to go with them this year, especially since my sister took her boyfriend with her. Yes, my sister has a boyfriend. His name is Sam, and I hate and despise him intensely. He's the kind of guy who can easily get a girlfriend, and he had a pretty girlfriend before he started dating my sister. She showed me pictures. I hate and envy him so much. The scumbag doesn't even have a car, and yet he's had lots of girlfriends. I drive a BMW and I still haven't gotten a girlfriend at age 22!

I actually had hope that at least one pretty girl would have shown interest in me by now, especially now that I drive

Page 196 a good-looking BMW. For the last two months, I've been going out every day, trying to find a chance to meet a girl. When I drove around Isla Vista, I saw guys with inferior cars having hot girls in their passenger seats. I drive a BMW, and I've never had any hot girl sit in my passenger seat! It makes me so enraged!

There really is no hope for me, is there? I'm still having trouble with coming to terms with that. My life is so hopeless.

It is now Valentine's Day of 2014. A few months ago I actually considered planning the Day of Retribution to be on this day. It is my most hated day of the year, the day all young couples, [one canceled word] my enemies, get to celebrate their happiness. What better day to exact my Retribution on such people? Or should I say animals. They are animals, and I am a god compared to them.

My entire being has seethed and festered with hatred for too long. I have given the world chance after chance to enable me to have a happy, pleasurable life of love and sex, but

Page 197 the world has continued to be cruel to me. I didn't expect I would last this long. I should have carried out my Retribution last November, but I kept clinging to hope. I wanted something to live for, but that hope has been shattered too many times. I can never forgive humanity for rejecting and mistreating me. I can never forgive the female gender for starving me of love and sex. I have nothing to live for now. Nothing to live for but revenge. My revenge will be so sweet. It will be perfect, beautiful, glorious!

It has been a very long time since I've written in this diary.

I had to tear some pages out because I feared my intentions would be discovered. I taped them back together as fast as I could

This is it. In one hour I will have my revenge on this cruel world. I HATE YOU ALLLL! DIE
